Rourkela(KCN): Odisha Police has arrested two persons from Jaipur and Jodhpur in Rajasthan for allegedly duping a resident of Rourkela city, a police officer said Friday.

The complainant, Arun Kumar Mandal, had alleged that the duo cheated him of Rs 23 lakh through online transactions, they said.

A special team of the Rourkela Police visited Rajasthan and arrested the two, residents of Jaipur and Jodhpur, a police officer said.

“After initial investigation, we found that this is the handiwork of an organised gang, which is operating all over India and internationally. In the first phase, we have apprehended two persons and the probe is underway,” SP Nitesh Wadhvani said.

A large crowd of people is gathered on a street, possibly for a protest or a public event. In the foreground, several people are sitting on the ground. A white van is visible in the background, and there are trees and buildings lining the street. The scene is outdoors and appears to be in a public space.

Farmland, resulting in the death of the farmer and damage to crops spread over nearly two acres of land, a source said.

Fire department personnel went to the spot and extinguished the flames, a police officer said.

Angry farmers, mostly residents of the village, expressed their outrage against the "negligence" of the electricity department, blaming it for the farmer's death.

They also placed the body in front of the Chandbali grid station demanding justice, he said. Some farmers also blocked the Chandbali road, leading to disruption in traffic movement. The family of the deceased sought adequate compensation both for the loss of life and the damage to the crop. Adequate police personnel were deployed to maintain law and order there, the Inspector-in-Charge of Chandbali police station, Panchanan Mohanty, said.

a major milestone to eradicate unemployment,” senior Congress leader Niranjan Patnaik said.

“India has lost a great economist and leader. When India’s economy was in a sorry state, he took charge of the Finance Ministry and brought our country out of that situation,” another Congress leader, Panchanan Kanungo, said.

The BJD leaders also paid tribute to the departed leader.

“In his passing away, India has lost an illustrious leader whose humility, wisdom and compassion for the nation and its people will always be remembered. My deepest condolences to his family and loved ones. A glorious era of Indian leadership has ended with his passing away,” BJD MP Sasmit Patra said on X.

KIMS Installs Eastern India's First Cardiac Laser Machine to Treat Complex Heart Diseases

Bhubaneswar, Dec 27(KCN): Kalinga Institute of Medical Sciences (KIMS) has installed a state-of-the-art Xenon Chloride Fusion Cardiac Laser Machine – a first in eastern India — to treat complex heart diseases and reduce the use of stents.

The advanced laser system, inaugurated by KIIT and KISS Founder Dr. Achyuta Samanta, will aid in performing coronary and peripheral atherectomy, lead management, and the removal of blockages that are otherwise untreatable by conventional angioplasty.

Dr. Anupam Jena, Associate Professor in the Department of Cardiology said that through this laser machine, “we can perform ultra-modern treatments that were previously unavailable in this region. This system allows us to offer international-standard cardiac care at KIMS. Patients with complex heart diseases, whether they have arterial blockages or require pacemaker lead removal, will greatly benefit from this technology,” he said.

Highlighting the benefits of the machine, Dr. Jena added, “This laser system is particularly beneficial for younger patients in their 20s and 30s. It can dissolve clogs and calcium deposits without the need for stents, which often carry their own set of complications. In some cases, stent placement can be avoided altogether, preserving the heart's natural anatomy and ensuring better long-term outcomes.”

Prof. Subasish Mishra, Head of the Department of Cardiology at KIMS, elaborated on the advantages of the technology. “This machine allows us to dissolve blood clots and blockages that are resistant to standard procedures. It significantly improves the management of complex coronary diseases and enhances patient care by reducing the risks associated with stents.”

The Department of Cardiology is considered among the best in Odisha, offering advanced holistic care and treatment to the patients coming from the state and outside. It is known for performing path-breaking surgeries and is equipped with some of the most advanced equipment. The Department boasts of well-known doctors such as Prof. Subasish Mishra, Dr. Anupam Jena, Dr. Panchanan Sahoo, Dr. Chandan Kumar Ray Mohapatra (CTVS), among others.

The Right Institute, The Right Path

Aubaid Ahmad Akhoon

As the academic year begins to wind down, a crucial crossroads lies ahead for parents of students in grades 8, 9, and 10: the decision of choosing the right coaching institute for their child's foundation exams. This decision is more than just academic—it holds the power to shape not only students' academic performance but also their future aspirations and overall personality. In a competitive world flooded with options, it's essential to choose a coaching institute that nurtures knowledge, builds character, and equips students with life skills that last a lifetime. Why Foundation Exams Matter: Foundation exams serve as stepping stones for a student's future academic and professional success. These crucial years not only set the tone for higher education but also refine a student's ability to handle competitive exams. Choosing the right coaching institute, therefore, becomes a decision that should be approached with diligence, care, and insight. Factors to Consider While Choosing the Right Institute Track Record and Reputation: An institute's credibility begins with its track record and reputation. Parents must conduct thorough research to understand the institute's success rate, focusing on the percentage of students who excelled in foundation exams or secured placements in reputable educational institutions. Institutes with proven success often have a systematic approach to teaching and a commitment to excellence that sets them apart. Qualified and Experienced Faculty: Teachers are the backbone of any coaching institute. The quality of faculty members determines how effectively students can grasp complex concepts. Experienced faculty members who excel at simplifying difficult topics, combined with interactive teaching methods, play a significant role in enhancing learning outcomes. Faculty with strong academic qualifications. A student-centric teaching approach. Teachers who emphasize doubt-clearing and personalized attention. Comprehensive Course Content and Study Materials: The best coaching institutes offer structured and updated study materials that align with the latest syllabus. Comprehensive course content must focus on conceptual clarity while encouraging critical thinking and analytical skills. Detailed notes and topic-wise breakdowns. Regular practice exercises and mock tests. Materials that emphasize application-based learning. Well-structured resources ensure that students not only memorize concepts but understand their practical applications, which is essential for long-term academic success. Innovative Teaching Approaches and Personalized Mentoring: Modern teaching methods such as interactive classes, digital tools, and gamified learning platforms have revolutionized education. Institutes that adopt these approaches, along with one-on-one mentoring and personalized doubt-clearing sessions, ensure students receive the attention they deserve. Technology-enabled classrooms. Customized learning plans tailored to each student's pace. Regular assessments with constructive feedback. Personalized mentoring allows educators to identify a student's strengths and weaknesses, providing targeted support to help them excel. Seminars on Moral and Social Responsibilities: Education is not limited to textbooks and exams; it also involves nurturing values and ethics. Coaching institutes that organize seminars on moral and social responsibilities stand out as holistic learning environments. These sessions teach empathy, integrity, and teamwork. Encourage critical social awareness. Prepare students to become responsible and ethical citizens. An institute that integrates moral education into its curriculum empowers students to balance academic excellence with personal development. Inclusivity: No Discrimination Based on Status or Background: Education should be an equal opportunity for all. Unfortunately, some institutes prioritize status symbols like luxurious infrastructure over actual learning. Parents must steer clear of such institutes and instead choose ones that prioritize equality and inclusivity. Institutes that promote equality for urban, rural, and economically weaker students. Scholarships for underprivileged yet deserving candidates. A culture of respect and inclusiveness. True education uplifts all, regardless of socioeconomic or regional backgrounds, and fosters an environment where every student can thrive. Location and Accessibility: Choosing an institute close to home ensures that students minimize their travel time and remain focused. Accessibility, safety, and a conducive learning environment play a major role in reducing stress and fatigue. Affordability and Scholarship Programs: Quality education doesn't have to come at an unbearable financial cost. Reputed coaching institutes often offer Merit-based scholarships for high achievers. Financial aid for students from underprivileged backgrounds. Transparent fee structures without hidden costs. These opportunities reflect an institute's commitment to making education accessible to all. Extracurricular Activities and Stress Management: Academic pressure can be overwhelming, especially during foundation years. Institutes that promote extracurricular activities such as yoga, sports, and art programs create a balanced learning environment. Stress management workshops help students cope with academic pressure. Activities like group discussions foster collaboration and teamwork. This holistic approach ensures that students remain mentally and emotionally resilient while focusing on their goals. Parental Involvement and Regular Progress Tracking: Parental involvement in a child's education strengthens their support system. Coaching institutes that encourage Regular parent-teacher meetings, timely progress updates and feedback. These initiatives allow parents to stay informed about their child's academic journey and provide timely guidance. Character Development: Respect and Self-Awareness: While academic achievements open doors to success, true education lies in developing character. Institutes that emphasize respect (adab) and self-awareness create individuals who are humble, disciplined, and aware of their strengths and weaknesses. Respect teaches kindness and humility, essential traits for personal and professional life. Self-awareness helps students identify their purpose and set meaningful goals. There is a well-known Urdu saying: "Ba Adab, Ba Naseeb; Be Adab, Be Naseeb," which translates to "Respectful is fortunate; disrespectful is unfortunate." This proverb underscores the vital role of respect and good manners in shaping one's life. It suggests that individuals who demonstrate respect, humility, and proper conduct are more likely to attract success, blessings, and opportunities. In contrast, those who lack respect and behave rudely often face setbacks, misfortunes, and missed chances. This saying serves as a timeless reminder that respect and etiquette are not only the foundation of personal growth and social harmony but also the key to earning admiration, trust, and lasting success in life. A respectful person ultimately recognizes their Creator. True success lies not just in achieving grades but in developing a balanced, purposeful, and morally upright personality. Choosing the right coaching institute for foundation exams is a pivotal decision that requires careful thought and consideration. Beyond academic rigor, parents and students must prioritize institutes that emphasize inclusivity, moral education, and holistic development. Flashy advertisements and superficial infrastructure may attract attention, but true value lies in institutes that nurture character, knowledge, and life skills. The right coaching institute ensures students not only excel academically but also grow into responsible citizens who contribute positively to society. Quality Education and Supportive Environment: Reputable coaching centers prioritize their students' success by investing in well-trained teachers and comprehensive study materials. They create a supportive learning environment that nurtures students' intellectual growth and instills a passion for knowledge. As someone who has dedicated several years to the coaching industry, I have consistently strived to provide quality education and create a supportive atmosphere for students. Drawing on my expertise in Urdu, education, and computer technology, I have developed innovative teaching methods, mentored students, and offered individualized attention to maximize their learning potential. Job Opportunities for Educated Youth: It is worth mentioning that coaching centers also provide employment opportunities for highly educated individuals. Drawing from my own experience of working in coaching centers for the past eight years, I have witnessed how these institutes effectively utilize the knowledge and skills of professionals, including individuals with expertise like myself, to benefit students and contribute to their educational growth. By offering job opportunities to highly educated youth, coaching centers not only empower individuals but also tap into their expertise to enhance the overall quality of education provided. With my specialization in Urdu, education, and computer technology, I have been able to actively contribute to the development of comprehensive study materials, implement innovative teaching methods, and integrate technology into the learning process. This multifaceted approach has played a vital role in enriching the educational experience for students. About the

No confidence in parliamentary dignity. (No-confidence motion notice against the Chairman of the Rajya Sabha.)

Priyanka 'Saurabh'

The opposition camp has given a notice of bringing a no-confidence motion against the Chairman in the Rajya Sabha. This will be the first time in the history of the Indian Parliament that a notice of no confidence has been brought against a chairman in the Rajya Sabha. Actually, this opportunity came up because all the opposition parties were unhappy with the chairman's stance in the House. The opposition alleges that the chairman always takes the side of the ruling camp and suppresses the voice of the opposition. The opposition wants to see the chair impartial, but after the last Lok Sabha, when things did not change in the Rajya Sabha even in the 18th Lok Sabha, the opposition tried to give a message of taking some strict action by raising the discussion of bringing a motion in the last session.

The role of presiding officers in Parliament is crucial to maintaining neutrality and ensuring that parliamentary proceedings are conducted in a fair and impartial manner. Recently, the opposition raised a no-confidence motion against the Rajya Sabha Chairman, accusing him of being partisan. This situation highlights the importance of maintaining impartiality in key leadership roles for the integrity of democratic processes. The role of presiding officers of Parliament in maintaining the neutrality of parliamentary proceedings is to ensure impartiality in debates. Presiding officers are expected to ensure that all MPs, regardless of party affiliation, are given equal opportunity to participate in debates. Impartiality in decisions: Decisions made by the Speaker should be based on parliamentary procedures rather than partisan inclinations. The Speaker should mediate conflicts between the government and the opposition, creating space for constructive dialogue while maintaining decorum. A neutral presiding officer ensures the integrity and credibility of Parliament, fostering a conducive environment for democratic debate. If the Speaker is perceived to be neutral, confidence in the parliamentary system is strengthened, thereby promoting healthy democratic debates, as seen in mature democracies such as the UK. The presiding officer must always demonstrate impartiality to safeguard the legitimacy of the parliamentary institution. If the Speaker is perceived to be biased, this may undermine confidence in parliamentary proceedings and public trust in the legislative process. Perceptions of bias in the Speaker's actions may result in the public perception that Parliament is being manipulated to serve the interests of one party. A biased speaker may exacerbate political divisions within Parliament, leading to increased conflict between the government and the opposition. In such a scenario, the government and the opposition may resort to extreme tactics to challenge the Speaker's decisions, leading to a more hostile and less productive environment in Parliament. Perceived bias in the Speaker undermines the institution of Parliament itself, which plays a central role in upholding democratic values. If the Speaker is biased, mechanisms of accountability within Parliament may fail, allowing unchecked executive power. If the Speaker is seen to be aligned with one political party, this may lead to public disillusionment with the democratic process and political institutions. Establishing clear guidelines for the role of the presiding officer will help maintain consistency and impartiality in decision-making. In the UK Parliament, the Speaker follows a formal code of conduct that ensures neutrality, helps to address concerns over bias, and promotes transparency in parliamentary proceedings. Ensuring long tenures for presiding officers can allow them to build trust, stability, and neutrality in their leadership roles. The fixed tenure of the German Bundestag president ensures long-term leadership stability, reducing the perception of partisan decision-making even during political upheaval. Introducing independent oversight mechanisms to review the president's decisions can ensure greater accountability and prevent partisan actions. Regular training programs for presiding officers can equip them with the skills needed to handle the complexities of parliamentary proceedings impartially. Leadership training focused on impartial decision-making and conflict resolution can help the president better navigate political pressures while maintaining neutrality. Promoting bipartisan cooperation in parliamentary committees and discussions can promote a more balanced approach to decision-making. Encouraging inter-party dialogue and cooperation within parliamentary committees can help bridge differences and ensure that the president remains neutral in mediating between the government and the opposition. The role of the presiding officers of Parliament is important in ensuring the neutrality of parliamentary proceedings. To maintain the credibility of democratic institutions, it is necessary to address the challenges faced by the Speaker, promote bipartisan cooperation, and ensure impartial leadership through clear guidelines and long tenure. In fact, through this, the opposition is trying to send a message to the Chair in both Houses of Parliament that if the Chair does not appear impartial, then the opposition will not hesitate to use its constitutional rights. In the last session, there was such a discussion in the political corridors regarding the Lok Sabha Speaker.

Death of Zakir: We have lost a gem

R.K. Sinha

In death of Zakir Hussain we have not only lost an individual but a tabla musician. Not only in this country but also in his fans across the world are saddened by his demise. It was not long ago only yesterday when his body was buried in a cemetery in San Francisco (USA).

Hundreds of fans from across the world had reached the place with heavy hearts to say final goodbye. The tabla maestro has created a void which is difficult to fill. He is no more but he will live in memory for long. He will be especially remembered for jugalbandis (duets) with Pandit Shiv Kumar Sharma and Pandit Hari Prasad Chaurasia.

I am fortunate to be one of the organisers of concerts of these great artists on the occasion of Durga Puja every year for decades at the Gardani Bagh ground in Patna and watch him closely during struggle days.

Will there never be a tabla player like him again? It would not be right to say that there will never be anyone like him because music is such a field which keeps evolving. Maybe in future, there will be another tabla player who will keep reminding us of Zakir Hussain with his talent and hard work. But, for now, it would be right to say that it will be difficult for a tabla player like Zakir Hussain to be born again. He was really unique.

For the present, the jugalbandi of Zakir Hussain and Pandit Shiv Kumar Sharma and Pandit Hari Prasad Chaurasia will be certainly missed. They were amazing. The coming together of these legends on stage was a wonderful experience.

Ustad Zakir Hussain was a master of tabla. His performance was unmatched. Pandit Shiv Kumar Sharma played santoor, which is a string instrument. Pandit Hari Prasad Chaurasia is a flute magician. When they came on stage, there was always loud applaud. They had a wonderful combination. They respected each other and created magic while communicating with each other. Their jugalbandi was always a talk of the town.

They could easily connect with the large crowd present the venue. Music lovers would applaud every raag produced by a flute and reproduced by a tabla or vice-versa. There would always be at the meeting of the three a perfect match between the sur and taal and a connect with listeners. Emotions like happiness and sorrow will be at play.

The concert of these three are unforgettable. They will be remembered for ever. They have left behind a legacy and enriched the Indian classical music. They played an important role in popularizing Indian music in different parts of the world.

I am personally of the view that the jugalbandi of Ustad Zakir Hussain and Pandit Shiv Kumar Sharma was wonderful and unique event in the history of Indian classical music. Both were masters in their respective fields. When these two came together on stage, a magical atmosphere was created which mesmerized the audience. The thaap of Zakir Hussain's tabla and the melodious sounds of Shivkumar Sharma's santoor created something extremely pleasant to listeners. Both the artists understood each other well, taking the music to a new height. Their jugalbandi was not just music, but a soulful dialogue. It seemed as if both the artists were talking to each other through their respective instruments.

Sometimes the fast pace of the tabla talked with the melodious tune of the santoor, and sometimes the slow tune of the santoor communicated with the strong beats of the tabla. There was a depth of emotions in their jugalbandi. Through music they took the listeners to a different emotional or say spiritual world.

Both the artists were masters of their respective instruments and their artistry was unmatched. While Zakir Hussain's fingers danced on the tabla, Shivkumar Sharma produced such sweet notes from his santoor that they touched the heart directly. Zakir Hussain had a great grip and beat. He could play even the most difficult taal with ease. He used to experiment while playing the tabla which made him different. He was always innovative. Zakir Hussain gave international recognition to tabla playing. He worked with many artists from all over the world and made the tabla a global musical instrument.

Zakir Hussain belonged to Punjab Gharana. He was known for his intricate laay and taal. He would play even the most difficult rhythms with ease. There was a wonderful flow which was immensely pleasing. He would move his fingers on the tabla in a way that looked magical. Zakir Hussain always used to experiment with laay and taal. I have closely watched Zakir Hussain's programs many times in Delhi and Patna. He used to dominate every time. Every sound coming from his tabla was clear. He was an expert in producing different types of sounds from different parts of the tabla. His fingers used to move so fast on tabla that the onlookers used to be amazed. He used to play different types of rhythms with his fingers.

He seemed to be communicating with the Tabla. It seemed as if his fingers were telling a story.

Zakir Hussain reached the pinnacle of glory through his hard work. He practiced every day till the end so that could do better. His life was music. His passion was clearly visible in his performance. Zakir Hussain was always ready to learn and experiment.

Zakir Hussain worked with many famous musicians from all over the world. He was an ambassador of Indian music. He played an important role in popularizing Indian music all over the world.

Despite being such a great artist, Zakir Hussain was always humble and down to earth. He always respected others. Undoubtedly, he is an inspiration for young musicians, particularly, young tabla players. The maestro is great source of learning.

Tale of Boxing Day Tests

Dr. Ravi Chaturvedi

Boxing Day is a holiday celebrated after Christmas Day, occurring on the second day of Christmastide (26 December). It originated in the United Kingdom and is celebrated in several Commonwealth nations since then. Boxing Day is also concurrent with the Christian festival Saint Stephen's Day when churches open alms boxes and servants receive gifts on December 26 for working on Christmas Day.

However, Boxing Day has its own significance in cricket as Boxing Day Test match is played at the Melbourne Cricket Ground (MCG), involving the Australian cricket team and the team touring Down Under. This cricket ritual begins annually on Boxing Day (26 December) at the same venue. Going back in cricket history reveals that a Sheffield Shield match between Victoria and New South Wales had been played at the MCG over the Christmas period in 1865, much to the chagrin of the players who missed Christmas celebrations with their families. The Melbourne Test was usually held over the New Year period, often starting on 1 January. Nevertheless, with changing times Boxing Day Test has been played on December 26. The Boxing Day Test match at the MCG has seen several memorable moments over the years. It was in 1985 when Aussie prodigy Steve Waugh made his Test debut and in 1988, West Indies speedster Malcolm Marshall claimed his 300th Test wicket. In 1994, spin wizard Shane Warne recorded a hat-trick against England while in 2006 picked up his 700th Test wicket vs. the Blighties. The Boxing Day Test has cultural significance and often draws large crowds. The MCG hosted its one of the largest Boxing Day crowd (91092) in the fourth Test of the 2013-14 Ashes series. On another occasion, in the 1960-61 tied Test series on the Boxing Day of Test match, 90,800 spectators watched the match at the MCG. After all, the highest footfall was recorded during the 2013 Boxing Day Test between Australia and England saw 91,112 cricket-loving visitors. Anyway, the highest in recent years at the MCG has been 89,155.

Another innovation introduced in 1975 has been Player of the Match award in each Boxing Day Test. However, since 2020, the man of the match has received the Mullagh Medal, named in honour of aboriginal Australian cricketer Johnny Mullagh.

There were no Boxing Day Test matches from 1953 until 1966. But from 1967, Boxing Day Test matches against India were recommenced at the Adelaide Oval played three days earlier on December 23. India's recent history at the MCG has been impressive, avoiding defeat in their last three Tests at this iconic venue. Their most notable achievement was during their last tour, where visitors defeated the Ajinkya Rahane (2), Virat Kohli (1), and Virender Sehwag (1). These contributions have played pivotal role in India's success at this challenging venue.

As for the bowling, Jasprit Bumrah is the pick of the pack with his memorable 6 for 33 in 2018 helped India record a famed victory at MCG. Bumrah has taken 15 wickets in just four innings at this iconic venue, matching the feat of the celebrity leg-spinner Anil Kumble. Going by yester years impressive performances, the Indian team is going out at the MCG with a fair degree of confidence in this crucial Test.

While India's recent record at the MCG is impressive, Australia will not go down without a fight. The hosts have a formidable record at home, winning six of their last ten Tests at the MCG, though they have lost twice to India. However, their dominance on home soil has been clear, with Australia winning the 2023 WTC final against India and tasting success in their last four Tests at the MCG.

For both teams, the outcome of the Boxing Day Test will be crucial for a place in the WTC final. A victory for India in this Test would keep their hopes alive, and with two more Tests remaining, the visitors will be looking to push for a series win in Australia. Which way the wind will blow at the MCG, only time will tell!

Skill India Mission: Paving the Way for Youths' Future

Dr. Manmohan Prakash

The progress, development, and success of any nation depend heavily on its productive youth population. Fortunately, for India, nearly 65% of its total population falls into this category. Recognizing the potential of this demographic, the Indian government under Prime Minister Narendra Modi launched the Skill India Mission on July 15, 2015, for the first time in decades after independence. This mission aims to create a robust skill development ecosystem in the country, focusing on providing traditional and modern skill training to the youth, making them productive, enhancing employment and entrepreneurship opportunities, and strengthening the national economy. The key programs under this mission include:

1) Pradhan Mantri Kaushal Vikas Yojana (PMKVY): This program provides short-term training to prepare youth for industries. So far, over 1.37 crore youth have been skilled through 720 modern and technologically advanced Pradhan Mantri Kaushal Kendras.

2) National Skill Development Corporation (NSDC): This facilitates the establishment of skill development and training centers by collaborating with private and government institutions.

3) Pradhan Mantri Kaushal Kendras (PMKK): These centers offer high-quality training facilities across the country.

4) Pradhan Mantri YUVA Yojana (PM-YUVA): This initiative educates and equips aspiring and budding entrepreneurs while encouraging cultural shifts towards entrepreneurship.

5) Start-Up India (launched on January 16, 2016): It aims to foster a start-up culture in India and build a robust ecosystem for entrepreneurship.

6) Stand-Up India (launched on April 5, 2016): This initiative prepares women and people from Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes for entrepreneurship.

7) National Apprenticeship Promotion Scheme (NAPS): Launched in 2016, it promotes a culture of apprenticeship in industries and provides youth with hands-on vocational experience.

Currently, the Skill

India Mission is aligning with the country's present and future needs and employment opportunities, offering training in several traditional and modern disciplines. Over 700,000 apprenticeship training programs have been conducted thus far. Key focus areas include:

- (i) Green Skills: Solar panel and windmill installation, waste management, recycling techniques, pollution monitoring and control, etc.
- (ii) Digital Skills: Digital marketing, data analytics, artificial intelligence, cybersecurity, etc.
- (iii) Technical Skills: Mechanical, electrical, and IT sectors.
- (iv) Tourism and Hospitality: Training for hotel management and various fields in the travel industry.
- (v) Agriculture and Rural Skills: Organic farming, dairy farming, poultry farming, fisheries, beekeeping, and rural entrepreneurship, among others.

In recent years, the Skill India Mission has provided employment opportunities or facilitated self-employment for millions of youth (both rural and urban) across various sectors through skill training. This mission has played a significant role in reducing unemployment, fostering entrepreneurship, generating employment, and preparing a competitive workforce for the global market.

However, the mission is not without its challenges. These include:

- a) A mismatch between the number of skilled youth and available job opportunities.
- b) Lack of alignment between skills and industry demand.
- c) Limited awareness and resources in rural areas.
- d) The need to improve the quality of skill training.
- e) Promotion of green and sustainable development-based skills.
- f) The need to expand skill training in digital education and fields like artificial intelligence.
- g) Conducting awareness campaigns to engage more youth.

Despite these challenges, the Skill India Mission remains a significant initiative for India's youth. It has the potential to transform the future of the country and its workforce, making it self-reliant and economically strong. This mission will undoubtedly serve as a milestone in creating a skilled nation and play a crucial role in achieving India's vision of becoming a "Skill-Rich Nation."

ICC mourns the loss of Dr. Manmohan Singh: A Visionary Economist and Statesman

Kolkata (PARTHA ROY): ICC mourns passing away of Dr. Manmohan Singh on 26th December 2024 in New Delhi. Dr. Manmohan Singh was visionary leader who played critical role in India's transformative journey for over three decades. "Dr. Manmohan Singh was the Chief Architect of India's landmark Economic Reforms in 1991, which took our economy out of a low-level equilibrium trap and onto a firm growth path that continues to this day. Very few leaders could successfully implement World Bank-IMF-backed economic reforms and transform their nations into economic powerhouses but Dr. Singh—whether as an Economist, Finance Minister or Prime Minister—was among those rare individuals. His comprehensive reform policies earned him worldwide recognition and are forever linked to his remarkable vision and statesmanship. Beyond his illustrious political and economic career, Dr. Singh exemplified integrity, humility and wisdom, earning him respect not only in India but across the globe. His legacy will continue to inspire generations of leaders, policymakers and citizens. May his soul rest in peace." said -Dr. Rajeev Singh, Director General, Indian Chamber of Commerce (ICC).

NEWDELHI, (KCN): He earned a First Class Honours (Tripos) degree in Economics in 1957 from University of Cambridge. (File) New Delhi: While studying in Cambridge University on a scholarship in the mid 1950s, money was the only real problem for Manmohan Singh and there were times when he had to skip meals or live on a sixpence bar of Cadbury's chocolate, according to his daughter Daman Singh. Manmohan Singh earned a First Class Honours (Tripos) degree in Economics in 1957 from University of Cambridge. Daughter Daman Singh came out with a book "Strictly Personal: Manmohan and Gursharan", published by HarperCollins in 2014, to tell the "story of her parents". She also mentioned that her father often spoke about his early years, of the hard life in the village as well as the charm of a simpler existence. Singh was born in Gah in Punjab province's western region, which now falls in Pakistan. Daman Singh recalled that when once her sister Kiki asked Singh if he wishes to go back to Gah, he replied mildly, "No, not really. That is where my grandfather was killed." Writing about her father's days at Cambridge, Daman said money was the only real problem that bothered him as his tuition and living expenses came to about 600 pounds a year while the Punjab University scholarship gave him about 160 pounds. "For the rest he had to depend on his father. Manmohan was careful to live very stingily. Subsidized meals in the dining hall were relatively cheap at two shillings sixpence. He never ate out, and seldom indulged in beer or wine," she wrote. Yet he would be in crisis if money from home fell short or did not arrive in time. "When this happened, he skipped meals or got by on a sixpence bar of Cadbury's chocolate. He would never borrow money his entire life, but this was when he came closest to doing so. The only person he could think of turning to was Madan (close friend Madan Lal Sudan)," the book said. After the results of the first-year Tripos examination were declared and Singh came first, he wrote to Madan Lal asking not to send him any money from then on. "I think I will get some prize worth about 20 pounds and if I press I might get an Exhibition (an allowance or scholarship), but I am not so greedy. I prefer to wait till next year," Daman Singh wrote. Daman also mentioned how her father used to sing at family get-togethers and picnics. "Whenever we went on a picnic, people used to sing. He knew a couple of songs. He sang 'Lagta nahin hai j mera' and Amrita Pritam's poem 'Aakhan Waris Shah noon, kitey kabran vichon bol'," she wrote. "Aakhan Waris Shah noon..." is about Partition and Amrita Pritam invokes Waris Shah to come and write about what happened to Punjab. "Lagta nahin" is the poem penned by last Mughal emperor Bahadur Shah Zafar when he was in exile in Rangoon, where he later died. According to Daman Singh, her father had a good sense of humour. "This was evident when he was with friends, even if they were economists. It was comforting to know that he could laugh and crack jokes as well. With us, he rarely did either." He also liked to give nicknames to people. "Unknown to them, one of our uncles was 'John Babu', another was 'Jewel Babu', and a third - to commemorate his pointed turban - was 'Chunj Waley'. My mother was 'Gurudev', and the three of us were 'Kick', 'Little Noan' and 'Little Ram'. Some of the other names he coined were less charitable," Daman Singh wrote. Daman Singh gave their pet dog Penu a string of affectionate names such as 'Nut Babu', 'Nutter' and 'Douse Fellow' and even composed little jingles around them.

When Manmohan Singh's "People of India..." Remark to Bush Created A Flutter In 2008

New Delhi: "The people of India deeply love you." This was how visiting Prime Minister Manmohan Singh spoke of US President George W Bush while praising him effusively after their 40-minute meeting at the Oval Office in the White House on September 25, 2008. He was flagging Bush's 'important and historic' role in forging several bilateral initiatives including the landmark Indo-US civil nuclear deal. While the weather was cloudy and rainy in Washington, it was all warmth inside the White House during the eight-minute press interaction by the two leaders who had a word of praise for each other on a few occasions, showing a spirit of bonhomie. But Singh's gushing praise of Bush in what was seen as a sweeping declaration created a flutter. Singh died on Thursday night at the age of 92.

The landmark civil nuclear agreement had led to the end of 34-year isolation of India in nuclear commerce. Both the Left, which withdrew support to the UPA-1 government over the nuclear deal, and the BJP had slammed Singh's effusive praise of Bush even as the Congress, which hailed the Indo-US nuclear deal as the "greatest" event for India in the 21st century, found itself on the back foot. "The people of India deeply love you, and all that you have done to bring our two countries closer to each other is something history will..." Singh, who left a lasting imprint on India's external relations, told the news conference where this correspondent was also present. Bush, who shared an excellent rapport with Singh, told the Prime Minister that he appreciated his friendship and his leadership. "I appreciate your friendship and I appreciate your leadership," Bush said. The president then went on to say, "You and I have worked hard to change the relationship between our countries. India is a great country with an incredibly bright future, and it's in the US interests to have a good, strong strategic relationship with India. And we've worked hard to achieve that." Touching upon the civil nuclear deal initiated in July 2005, Bush told Singh, "It has taken a lot of work on both our parts, a lot of courage on your part." "All in all, ours is a very strong relationship at a state level and at a personal level, and I appreciate you coming." The prime minister in his response said, "When history is written, I think it will be recorded that President George W

Bush played a historic role in bringing our two democracy closer to each other." Singh, who will be remembered for his uncompromising commitment to secure the Indo-US nuclear deal, told Bush that the president had played the "most important role in the massive transformation of India-United States relations". In the context of the tortuous journey of the Indo-US nuclear deal, the Prime Minister told the president these are difficult issues and at each stage it was "your leadership, your personal intervention, which resolved all the difficulties that were affecting the progress of these negotiations". At another point, while referring to how the nuclear restrictive regime will end after the Nuclear Suppliers Group waiver, Singh said, "For 34 years India has suffered from a nuclear apartheid. We have not been able to trade in nuclear material, nuclear reactors, nuclear raw materials. And when this restrictive regime ends I think a great deal of credit will go to President Bush. And for this I am very grateful to you, Mr. President." A year later, Bush, who had demitted office in January 2009, again praised Singh during his India visit. "I really like Prime Minister Manmohan Singh. The Prime Minister is a wise leader," he said at the HT Leadership summit in Delhi on October 31, 2009. Bush, who was at his humorous best, complimented Singh a day after the Indian leader described him as a "great friend of India". Bush, who showered praise on Singh, described the economic liberalisation process initiated by India in 1991 when Singh was the Finance Minister as one of the two important events of that year that led to the transformation of Indo-US ties. On his second visit to India since March 2006 when he came here as President, Bush said he was "honoured" to be back here. Reacting to Singh's "People of India deeply love you" remark, CPI-M general secretary Prakash Karat had said, "We always knew that PM Manmohan Singh is in love with president Bush. Why is he getting people of India in between (the relationship)?" CPI national secretary D Raja said, "At a time when Bush's rating is so low in his own country, it does not augur well for the Indian PM to say such a thing." The BJP also appeared to be on the same page as the Left parties. "All I can say is that the personal adulation of PM Manmohan Singh cannot become India's adulation," BJP spokesperson Ravi Shankar Prasad said. Congress media cell chairperson Veerappa Moily was hard put to defend the Prime Minister's remark to Bush. Asked how Singh could speak on behalf of the entire people about their liking for Bush, Moily said the statement in general was an expression of India's "tolerant and accommodating" attitude. "India has never practised a hate culture - there's nothing wrong with the PM saying that," he said.

Dismal cotton procurement in mandis as rain plays spoilsport

Bhawanipatna((KCN): Inclement weather along with bouts of untimely rainfall has put the cotton farmers in Kalahandi district on their toes, leaving them sceptical about getting the right price for their produce in mandis. Known for its long fibre and durable quality, cotton is a hallmark crop of Kalahandi district. However, this year's erratic rainfall combined with unfavourable weather conditions has cast doubts on farmers' prospect of receiving fair prices for their cotton in the mandis. Reports indicate that over 50,000 farmers have registered for cotton cultivation this season. The Agriculture department estimates that cotton has been planted on 71,000 hectares in Kalahandi, with production projected to exceed 1.071 million quintals. Despite the optimistic projection, concerns persist about the government's effort to ensure successful implementation of cotton farming initiatives. According to data available from the Cotton Scheme Officer, only 2,121 farmers have sold around 63,000 quintals of cotton so far this year, reflecting significant underperformance. In previous years, cotton cultivation in the region matched the record-breaking scale of paddy farming. This year, however, farmers are anxious about sale of their produce. While the Minimum Support Price (MSP) for cotton is set at Rs 7,521 per quintal, many farmers have been forced to sell their produce to middlemen at lower prices, avoiding reliance on the mandi system. This has given rise to distress sale of the fibre in the district. The Rayagada branch of Cotton Corporation of India Ltd. has reported that Gopal Organic and Dadaguru Agro India Pvt. Ltd. procured cotton from the Karlapada centre. On the other hand, companies like Natural Organic, Savitri Cotton India, and Bansal Agrotech have made purchases from the Kesinga centre. However, the farmers are hesitant to sell their produce in mandis this year despite the facilities being operational since November 29. It is crucial for the administration to understand this hesitation. Reports said that middlemen intercept farmers at their doorsteps and offer to buy cotton for `6,500 per quintal even before it reaches the mandi. Additionally, there is no measure in place to stop the illegal transportation of cotton from the district, as government gate systems are no longer operational. Cotton cultivated on Kalahandi's black soil has high demand not only in international markets but also in states like Maharashtra and Gujarat. In fact, Kalahandi farmers have successfully exported cotton to countries like Thailand and Bangladesh earlier. Chatters are abuzz that the District Collector is directly monitoring the opening of mandis this year but the volume of cotton arriving at the mandi remains unsatisfactory. This year, mandis have been opened in areas like Karlapada under Bhawanipatna block, Utkela under Kesinga block, and Uchala under Golamunda block. Depending on the quality, cotton with 8-11 per cent impurity levels is eligible to be sold at the MSP fixed by the government. Farmers are sceptical about receiving a fair price given the biting cold prevailing in the region. They have failed in properly drying their cotton bundles and transporting the harvest to the mandis in this weather condition. Many are waiting for outside traders to arrive and offer better deals. On the other hand, middlemen and agents from neighbouring districts and Andhra Pradesh are allegedly luring the farmers to sell their produce illegally. Reports suggest that 8 to 10 locations in the district see illegal trading of up to 2 lakh quintals of cotton annually. Despite this, the administration is yet to take any steps to curb such practices.

Villagers tie up 3 to trees over 'conversion' bid

Nilgiri(KCN): Tension prevailed after villagers caught three persons and tied them to trees over an alleged bid to proselytise the local tribals at Gobardhanpur village in Kepilakharaj panchayat of this block in Balasore district, Thursday. Kohli fined 20% of his match-fee, handed 1 demerit point for Konstas incident

New Delhi: Virat Kohli has been fined 20 percent of his match fee and awarded one demerit point for shoulder bumping Sam Konstas at the MCG on Thursday morning. The decision was arrived at by the International Cricket Council (ICC) after a hearing conducted by match referee Andy Pycroft after Stumps. Kohli admitted to inappropriate conduct. "Kohli was found to have breached Article 2.12 of the ICC Code of Conduct for Players and Player Support Personnel, which relates to 'inappropriate physical contact with a Player, Player Support Personnel, Umpire, Match Referee or any other person (including a spectator during an International Match)," the ICC stated in a media release. On-field umpires Joel Wilson and Michael Gough, third umpire Sharfuddoula Ibne Shahid and fourth umpire Shawn Craig levelled the charge against Kohli. Cricket is not a contact sport and there are rules for body nudging in the game. Article 2.12, as stated in the ICC release, reads, "Any form of inappropriate physical contact is prohibited in cricket. Without limitation, players will breach this regulation if they deliberately, recklessly and/or negligently walk or run into or shoulder another player or umpire. "When assessing the seriousness of the breach, the following factors (without limitation) shall be taken into account: (i) the context of the particular situation, including, without limitation, whether the contact was deliberate (i.e. intentional), reckless, negligent, and/or avoidable; (ii) the force of the contact; (iii) any resulting injury to the person with whom contact was made; and (iv) the person with whom contact was made." The incident occurred after the end of the 10th over of the Day One of the Test when Kohli was seen shoulder-nudging the debutant Australian opener in front of a 90,000-strong MCG crowd. It led to an exchange between the players with the other opener, Usman Khawaja, trying to cool things down. Kohli's act drew instant outrage with Ricky Ponting calling for sanctions against the Indian batter. "Virat walked one whole pitch over to his right and instigated that confrontation. No doubt in my mind whatsoever. I have no doubt that the umpires and the referee will have a good look at that. Fielders should be nowhere near the batsman at that stage. "Every fieldsman on the ground knows where the batsmen will congregate and get together. It looked to me that Konstas looked up really late, and wouldn't even know anyone was in front of him. That man on-screen there (Kohli) might have a few questions to answer," the former Australia skipper was quoted in Seven as saying by Fox. One local media report called Kohli, a player of 121 Tests, 81 international centuries and over 25,000 runs, an antagonist. Konstas, though, said, "It happens." Ravi Shastri, former India coach, did not approve of Kohli's act and said it was unnecessary. "There is a line and you don't want to overstep that line," the former India coach said. Based on the decisions of the match referees in recent times, the sentence appeared apt. Bangladesh's Tanizim Hasan Shakib had a verbal spat with a Nepal player and was fined 15 per cent of the match fee after an inquiry under CoC in June this year. He was charged for verbal altercation but there was apparently a bit of body contact too in that incident. Pycroft is one of the most experienced match referees. On Thursday, the ICC congratulated him on reaching the 100th Test as a referee. As per the CoC regulations, when a player reaches four or more demerit points within a 24-month period, they are converted into suspension points and a player is banned.

New Delhi: Deepti Sharma's all-round show (6 for 31 and 39), aided by Renuka Thakur's 4 for 29, scripted India's series sweep over West Indies in Vadodara with a five-wicket win in the third and final ODI on Friday (December 27). Thakur provided the early breakthroughs before Chinelle Henry's fifty, and Deepti then ran through the middle and lower order to claim her second career six-fer. Chasing West Indies' 162, India lost a few wickets upfront but significant contributions from the middle order pulled the hosts to safety comfortably. In the first day game of the three-match series, West Indies skipper Hayley Matthews surprised with the choice to bat first. Thakur got the ball rolling with twin strikes in her opening over to send back both the West Indies openers without scoring. Qiana Joseph gloved the very first ball of the game while Matthews was cleaned up at the end of that over. Deandra Dottin then stumbled against another in-swinging delivery from Thakur - third time in a row in this series - to depart for 5, reducing the visitors to 9 for 3 in five overs. Henry got a life even before she could open her account, and went on to forge a 91-run stand with Shemaine Campbelle to resurrect West Indies' chances. The pair batted cautiously at the start but slowly began to free their arms against India's two inexperienced spinners, Priya Mishra and debutant Tanuja Kanwar. Deepti too came in the firing line briefly, but she ultimately provided the much-needed breakthrough her team sought as Campbelle tried to slog a slower one down the ground and was caught at long-on. West Indies also caused

Zaida James was in and out in a jiffy, but Aaliyah Alleyne offered some resistance. Henry reached a 62-ball fifty by the end of the 28th over but was cleaned up by Deepti soon after as another mini collapse ensued. From 141/5, the visitors lost their remaining five wickets for the addition of just 21 runs. Deepti claimed four of those - reaching her career's third fifer with Afy Fletcher's dismissal in a wicket- maiden 36th over. Her sixth came in the following over before Thakur had Mandy Mangru caught at cover to bundle out West Indies for 162 in just 38.5 overs. West Indies also caused early troubles with the ball for India. Dottin was sharp with the new ball, and sent down 17 dots in her first-three overs, while the only scoring shot was Smriti Mandhana opening her account with a boundary off the 12th delivery she faced. Alleyne, at the other end, struck early when she had the inform Mandhana walking back cheaply. Centurion in Game 2, Harleen Deol became Dottin's first scalp at the start of the seventh over. Harmanpreet Kaur, however, had other intentions and she made that clear with twin boundaries in the space of her first-three deliveries to close that over. She remained punishing towards Dottin, hitting three more boundaries off her to take India past the 50-run mark in the ninth over itself. The skipper made a brisk 22-ball 32 but wickets in quick succession left India needing to rebuild once again. Joining hands at 73/4, Deepti and Jemimah Rodrigues forged a 56-run partnership for the fifth wicket that put India's chase back on track. The pair respected the good balls, and did the bulk of their scoring in ones and twos to keep the scoreboard ticking. Against the run of play, Rodrigues departed on 29, sweeping a Karishma Ramharack delivery to square leg. That brought Richa Ghosh to the crease, and in her true style the Indian wicketkeeper got going with a slogsweep off Matthews over midwicket for a maximum. From there on, the duo dealt mostly in boundaries, notably the two consecutive sixes off Fletcher as Ghosh took India past the finish line in just 28.2 overs with her brisk 11-ball 23 not out.

Rohit Sharma, please retire: Fans hurt after India captain fails in MCG Test

New Delhi: Border-Gavaskar Trophy: Rohit Sharma continued to fail with the bat in the Test series in Australia. The India captain has managed just 22 runs across five innings in the series. The India captain was dismissed as early as the 2nd over of the innings Rohit has struggled for form, scoring just 22 runs across 5 innings in the series. A section of fans vented their frustration after India captain Rohit Sharma was dismissed for another low score, this time in the first innings of the much-anticipated Boxing Day Test in Melbourne. Rohit was dismissed for 3 as early as the second over of the Indian innings. He did not appear fully focused, falling to a loose shot on Day 2 of the Test match. The poor run of form with the bat continued as the Indian captain's return to the top of the order ended in disappointment. Rohit played a tentative half-pull to a delivery from Pat Cummins that pitched short and held up slightly on the surface. The India captain has managed only 22 runs in four innings so far in the series, with scores of 3, 6, 10, and 3. Rohit appeared low on intensity, and his shot lacked conviction, ending his five-ball stay at the crease. Questions have been raised about Rohit Sharma's contributions to the Test team, particularly after he moved down to the middle order and failed with the bat in Adelaide and Brisbane. Rohit had opted not to open the innings to allow KL Rahul and Yashasvi Jaiswal to play at the top of the order. However, in Melbourne, the batting order was reshuffled after India dropped Shubman Gill, and Rohit returned to the top of the order, only to fail to make an impact.

If someone is lacking the hunger, I must help them develop that - Salahuddin

New Delhi: Unlike in the past, Bangladesh's senior assistant coach Mohammad Salahuddin is not the centre of action leading up to the Bangladesh Premier League, the country's lone franchise-based T20 tournament, scheduled from December 30. He is the most successful coach of the competition as he guided his team to the final on five occasions while winning the championship four times. Salahuddin, barred from working in BPL as he is involved with the Bangladesh team, entered the Sher-e-Bangla National Stadium quietly and left without any noise after spending time with some cricketers outside the BCB Academy premises. "I am not missing BPL," Salahuddin told Cricbuzz on Thursday. "Whatever I do, I try to be happy with it and in life, I don't regret that much. I want to see a good BPL where our boys perform well because that is important for me as well as for the team because if the standard of BPL is good it will benefit us. But I am not missing that too much and not for a second did I feel that way (BPL team have started their training)," he said. "I am focused on the work that I am doing and I don't look elsewhere like who is doing what because I have very limited expectations and want to give my hundred percent to the job I am doing. I won't dwell too much on what I am getting and what I am not. I follow this philosophy that suggests a man is unhappy the most by seeing why others are doing well but I don't have that in me because I feel if someone is doing good, let him do it." Salahuddin added that he is not sure whether he will make it to the ground for all the games of BPL, but he promised he will keep an eye just to make sure he is well aware of his resources for the national team. "I think if I see it on TV, it is better because I can see the replay as well. But I will try to see all the games from the field in Dhaka, and if I can go out, I will do that as well. I feel it is important for me to see the whole tournament. We have a lot of areas to improve and a lot of players are required to fill different spots. So we need to see how these cricketers perform in those positions.

"The main job for me in this BPL would be seeing how players respond in different situations. At certain points, if any player wants to practice with me individually, I will try to help him and I am not worried about it. If they want, I am available for them but I don't think that will be the case." While Salahuddin was explaining his immediate future course of action, he looked pretty happy about the way things turned out in his first assignment during the recently-concluded tour of West Indies, where Bangladesh had drawn the two-match Test series with had mixed results in the white-ball format. Bangladesh T20I skipper Litton Das insisted that the presence of Salahuddin in the dressing room helped them in more than many ways. Salahuddin, who was entrusted with the responsibility of guiding the batting unit, added that he certainly enjoyed some kind of comfort with the players. "Certainly knowing the boys helped me a lot because I have seen them from a very early stage, and as a result I had a comfort zone while communicating with them," he said. Salahuddin added that he is not losing his sleep over the expectations from him. He is focusing on developing the team and more importantly, making them hungry for success, a trait he ingrained in cricketers like Shakib al Hasan to Mominul Haque being their mentor. "Look I am not worried about all those expectations, rather I always think about their development," he said.

"And if I see that someone is lacking the hunger, I must help them develop that hunger. In this tour, the only thing we emphasized is making sure we are not focusing on individual achievements and need to move forward as a team. Salahuddin added that he is impressed with the way head coach Phil Simmons handled everything both on and off the field. "I think he is a positive coach and had his own plan as far as improving the team is concerned and looked focused on seeing how the team can move forward," he said. "The best thing is that he does not impose anything on the players. I think the communication between him and the players was quite good."
