Why our mental health issues need deep introspection for our long term well being ?

Inability to focus on work or an important projects adds to serious mental stress and anxiety. We have often faced this in our lives in whatsoever profession we may be engaged. Academics, researchers, professors and teachers, artists, sculptors, dramatists, painters, writers, poets, lyricists, playwright writers, doctors, engineers, lawyers, journalists, educators, administrators, politicians, sports and film personnel, celebrities, homemakers everyone has faced blockades in their creative and regular life at some point in their life. We mostly are able to over such psychological and emotional blockages abs blank pages of life after a short or long struggle and continue with our life, moving forward. But for some, the ability to get back to this regular life style once you have got a psychological blockage in your mind is monumental. It is an unimaginably difficult and humongous challenge for some to get back to their daily routine. As a consequence, they suffer from acute depression, anxiety, frustration, despair, anger and occasional helplessness unable to make any positive changes to their life in spite of the fact they are aware of this problem. But still, they are unable to get out of it; and therefore suffer both physically and emotionally for a considerable long period of their life. They later regret this obsession; but, presently they repeatedly fail to take any assertive action in spite of being aware of the consequences of their failures. I have gone through similar psychological barriers in my young days too that made my each passing day agonizing and extremely painful. I was occasionally unable to focus on my studies during my undergraduate and graduate degree programs as far as I can recall now. I had no intention to cheat or waste my crucial study hours before the major exams; but, simply could not concentrate on the books and notes. Everyday, I had a plan of accomplishing some of my study goals and since I could not focus, I failed miserably in securing those goals. Each adding day turned into an antagonizing experience for me. The harder I tried; most devastatingly I failed caught in a vicious cycle. I knowingly wasted my crucial study time in doing unnecessary chitchats with my friends over phone or in person, ate a lot of junk foods and drank soft drinks that added to my unwanted weight gains and poor health, watched countless movies and useless TV serials, continuously read newspapers, magazines and storybooks; but, failed make an inch of progress with my pending assignments that started collecting dust on my study table. The more I failed I started getting isolated from my friends and family members including my parents. I wanted to hide my face in shame as they provided me the best they could for facilitating my education; and yet a ‘shameless me’ wasted their sincerity and efforts in helping me to build a good career for myself. I used to constantly suffer from a deep mental agony both consciously and unconsciously for not being able to achieve my study goals. I do remember that with every passing day, my exam preparation time slowly vanished into oblivion and myself being held captive by ‘myself’ in a never ending vicious cycle of non-achievement of even minor study goals. These repeated failures pushed me into long periods of sleeplessness with deep internal feelings of acute frustrations, depression and anguish that I could not share with anyone around me. This persistent mental agony I felt facilitated my slide down the ‘ladder of life’, that I was supposed to climb in my professional life. Failure-guilt-agony and failure again turned into a regular cycle of my life which was otherwise so normal and regular in front of others. I was surrounded by an ocean of people around me; but, yet I felt lonely, isolated, scared and cornered all the time. Slowly I started loosing my self-confidence, spent long hours in washroom crying or hiding from everyone; and worse even that I realize that I have started to ran away from myself....making my life even more miserable. With every passing day failing to achieve even a single goal further demotivated me to continue with my studies andslowly I started branding myself as a a ‘looser’, ‘failure’, ‘retard’ and even a ‘useless’ member of the society who can contribute nothing positive or substantial to life at any point of time and is actually a ‘burden’ for my closed family members, friends and even the society at large. I will not hide that even negative suicidal thoughts crossed my minds in those dark hours; and I slumped deeper and deeper into unspeakable pain, agony, and depressive feelings; as well suffering from the continuous guilt admission within myself as I am not being unable to overcome this challenge or obstacle in my life during that period to focus on my studies. Even though based on my past performances, my teachers, professors and friends used to brand me as the brightest student in the batch, I had very little self-respect for myself. I stated running away from my friends and family; and found myself emotionally trapped inside a bubble, separating me from all and pushing me into a dark fearful corner with no hope or aspiration in life. Everyday, I felt that I am moving into a path of no return and deep melancholy with nothing to look forward in life. Later I noticed that these periods of mental agony happened during the long study leaves that ran for a month and when we didn’t need to attend the college or classes. I used to be an entirely different personality when classes used to run regularly and had no negative thoughts or fear jeopardizing me. These impacted my success in my academic career and I found myself slowly transforming into a scared back bencher who wants to possibly ran away from everyone including my self. Later someone exposed me to the life and daily life practices of Noble laureate and world poet Rabindranath Tagore. I was greatly inspired to note that how hardworking and sincere he was with his work; and how he divided his time meticulously to cater to both his personal and professional life successfully. He worked long hours of his creative writings, paintings and song compositions; yet he studied regularly, responded to numerous mails, supervised and directed regular activities of the Bishwabharati University during its teething period, prepared his erudite lectures, cared for ashramites and his family members and every other activity with a sense of deep sincerity and love. I failed to understand how could an individual be so creative and productive; but, yet excelled in successfully catering to his social and professional responsibilities. But as I dug deeper into his inspirational life, I learnt that he was a strict disciplinarian. He would go to bed post midnight and get up early and spent time on his daily meditation. Following this he will get into his daily cycle of writing, resting, studying, supervising and managing his responsibilities. He forced and trained his mind into this regular discipline; and that helped him to slowly become an outstanding poet, lyricist, composer, writer, artist, playwright, novelist, storyteller, academic, educationist, reformer, visionary and above all the greatest humanist of our time. This glimpse of the monumental life of this polymath genius inspired and helped me to get out of my dark past. Rather than trying to meet big and unachievable philosophical objectives; I started to focus on achieving small daily goals in my own life. Starting from morning to evening, I prepared a routine and tried to follow that diligently. I failed many times; but slowly over 2-3 weeks time I had a grip on myself. I stoped over reacting, over eating and drinking; as well stoped in participating in useless chitchats and was amazed to note how much additional time I could save per day. During this time too, I came across a teaching by Gautam Buddha where he preached an individual to look and improve upon his or her own life; rather than trying to impact the life of others. Focusing on oneself is not at all selfishness; but an ability to explore our internal strengths abs weakness I realized. If I do not learn to take care of myself, I realized I would never be able to take care of others. I tried to remove myself from interfering with others lives and focus on my own. This changed my life and views and felt inner peace as well as in achieving small goals of my life. I learnt that I am my own teacher and my best friend; and that none knows me better than myself. Every small step I took in life and every small achievements made my life productive, happier and peaceful. I started moving out of my dark period and felt blessed and enlightened. My self realization has been that self control on our emotions, behaviours, greeds, fears, attitudes and activities determine who we are today, and we are going to transform into tomorrow. Self development and self improvement as preached by Swami Vivekananda are the two cornerstones of our life that we need to understand. An individual who could not take care of himself or herself could never achieve anything great good for the society and this planet, I have realized in my life. Procrastination is an evil sin that destroys our life. Our inability to take decisions, make choices and not knowing our ‘real’ strengths and limitations are the factors impacting our lives and actions. Sometimes we have to leave the struggle of our daily life, sit back and reflect on our memories, experiences, actions and inactions to regain our mental strength, work diligently without expectations and rediscover the path we need to follow in our journey called life. We always blame others including God for all our problems, failures and hopelessness. But we need to take responsibility for our own inactions, indecisions, uncontrolled emotional outbursts, greed, jealousy as well as unjustified hatred for others. Only then could we realize that our life is much better that we perceive it to be. The more we blame others for our problems; the further we get swamped away in the doldrums. We need to learn to be responsible for our actions and inactions, adding the buck to others only increase our internal pain and agony. Don’t think that you are so important in life, no matter how powerful you are ! Because life can change in the fraction of a second. Always carry the ‘true’ empathy in your heart for those on the other side of the boundary; and thank yourself to see another beautiful day in your life. In the long journey we call ‘life’, I learnt that our life can only run in balance when we can control our inner self expressions; and sincerely introspect our weaknesses and strengths with true objectivity and unbiased reasoning.

The scheme, also known as UDAN (Ude Desh Ka Aam Nagrik), is contributing to the growth of the civil aviation industry, as four new airlines have come up in the last six years and have generated demand for new aircraft, an official release said.

It is providing opportunities to small

FIRST WOMAN OF SER TO RUN EMU LOCAL TRAIN

Kolkata,(KCN):Smt Dipanwita Das made history as the first motor-woman of South Eastern Railway (SER) to run Electric Multiple Unit (EMU) train services on Wednesday (October 25, 2023). She added a new feather in the crown of SER's success stories. She is hence a live instance of empowering women workers in the country. Soumya Vishwanathan Murder Case: Hearing For Arguments On Sentencing On November 7

New Delhi(KCN): A Delhi court today deferred to November 7 the hearing on the quantum of sentence for the five men convicted for killing TV journalist Soumya Vishwanathan in 2008 on grounds that the pre-sentence report and other documents were yet to be filed.

On October 18, Additional Sessions Judge (ASJ) Ravindra Kumar Pandey had convicted Ravi Kapoor, Amit Shukla, Baljeet Malik, and Ajay Kumar under IPC section 302 (murder) and provisions of the Maharashtra Control of Organised Crime Act (MCOCA) and listed the case for hearing arguments on the quantum of sentence on Thursday.

Taking note of the fact that certain documents, including the pre-sentence report of the probationary officer, had to be filed mandatorily if the maximum sentence in the case is death penalty, the court adjourned the hearing to November 7. Vishwanathan, who was working with an English news channel, was shot dead in the early hours of September 30, 2008, on south Delhi's Nelson Mandela Marg while she was returning home from work. Police claimed the motive was robbery.

"List the matter for consideration of the report of the probation officer, consideration on the affidavits of the convicts, affidavit on behalf of the state and report from Delhi State Legal Services Authority (DSLTA)...and for arguments on quantum of sentence on November 7 at 2 PM," ASJ Pandey said.

He said though the Delhi State Legal Services Authority (DSLTA) had filed the victim impact report, the convicts had not filed their affidavits. Counsels for the convicts jointly submitted that they were unable to prepare the affidavits as they did not have the details and necessary direction could be issued to the jail superintendent and legal aid counsel, available with prison authorities, to assist the convicts in preparation of the affidavits.

The court said according to the guidelines of the Delhi High Court, in a case where there is a conviction for an offence punishable with the death penalty (as one of the alternate punishments), a pre-sentence report had to be obtained from the probation officer before the hearing on the quantum of sentence.

"Accordingly, the principal secretary, home department, Delhi government is hereby directed to assign to any probation officer the task of submitting the pre-sentencing report," the court said.

It said the report had to specifically include the twin aspects of whether the convicts could commit further crimes and thus remain a "continuing threat to society" and whether there was any probability of the convicts being reformed and rehabilitated.

While detailing the inquiry procedure to be followed by the probation officer, the court said in the light of the fundamental right against self-incrimination, the convicts must be informed of their rights to be silent and in no circumstance can any adverse inference be drawn if the convicts refuse to give an interview to the probation officer.

Recovery Agents May Be Barred From Calling Borrowers Between 7 pm And 8 am

Mumbai: The Reserve Bank of India on Thursday proposed stricter norms for recovery of overdue loans under which financial institutions and their recovery agents cannot call borrowers before 8 in the morning and after 7 in the evening. Regulated Entities (REs) like banks and NBFCs should not outsource core management functions, including policy formulation and decision-making functions like determining compliance with KYC norms and according sanction for loans, said the 'Draft Master Direction on Managing Risks and Code of Conduct in Outsourcing of Financial Services'.

"The underlying principle of the proposed directions is that the RE should ensure that outsourcing arrangements neither diminish its ability to fulfil its obligations to customers nor impede effective supervision by the supervisory authority," the Reserve Bank of India said. The draft said REs should put in place a board-approved code of conduct for Direct Sales Agents (DSA)/ Direct Marketing Agents (DMA)/ Recovery Agents (applicable to commercial banks, cooperative banks and NBFCs). The REs should ensure that the DSA/DMA/ Recovery Agents are properly trained to handle their responsibilities with care and sensitivity, particularly aspects, such as soliciting customers, hours of calling, privacy of customer information and conveying the correct terms and conditions of the products on offer. "The REs and their Recovery Agents shall not resort to intimidation or harassment of any kind, either verbal or physical, against any person in their debt collection efforts, including acts intended to humiliate publicly or intrude upon the privacy of the debtors'/their guarantors' family members..." the draft said. They should not also send inappropriate messages either on mobile or through social media, making threatening and anonymous calls, persistently calling the borrower/guarantor, and making false and misleading representations. "Further, the REs and their Recovery Agents are barred from calling the borrower/guarantor before 8:00 a.m. and after 7:00 p.m. for recovery of overdue loans," the RBI has proposed. The draft, on which the RBI has invited stakeholders' comments by November 28, 2023, also said the REs should have in place a management structure to monitor and control their outsourcing activities.

Unknown disease ruins paddy crop, dashes farmers' hope in Odisha

BARGARH: Farmers of Bargarh district are in dire straits after an unidentified plant disease has affected their standing paddy crops leaving them damaged and pale. The unknown disease was first noticed by farmers of the Attabira, Bhatli and Bheden blocks during mid-April. They reported that the tip of their paddy crops first turned pale after which the entire plant got damaged. Later farmers of other blocks also complained of their paddy showing similar symptoms. While some reported the matter to the district agriculture office, others sent tweets to the principal secretary of the Agriculture Department, Government of Odisha, Arabinda K Padhee. "We will incur huge losses as standing paddy grown on large tracts of land are now damaged," alleged farmer leader Ramesh Mahapatra. The crops have symptoms of two to three diseases but farmers are unable to identify the exact cause. The Agriculture Department officials have collected samples. Large tracts of paddy cultivation have been affected by the disease, farmers said. "While the officials have assessed the damage of crops on over 300-400 hectare land, in reality, around 2,000-3,000 hectare has been affected," Mahapatra further informed. Chief district agriculture officer (CDAO), Bargarh, Ashok Kumar Amat said a team from Krishi Vigyan Kendra (KVK) will visit all blocks to further assess the situation. The region witnessed inclement weather conditions for the last few months, said Amat, adding, the district witnessed sweltering heat and incessant rainfall in succession while some regions faced hailstorms. "While the crops developed Rice Blast and Bacterial Leaf Blight diseases, excessive application of urea on the affected plants further led to Neck Blast Disease," Amat stated. Official sources informed that while the farmers applied excess urea to their crops, a decrease in the application of potash by 50 per cent has left the crops more susceptible to pest attack. Amat informed that the crops on which the disease is in its initial stage can be revived by the use of pesticides. "But those that have entirely been affected by the disease, are almost destroyed. The KVK scientists have recommended the application of necessary pesticides for them. We will carry out a loss assessment soon," he added.

While free medicines are issued in government hospitals, immediate steps are being taken if there are problems in execution of Biju Swasthya Kalyan Yojana (BSKY) in private hospitals, he added. Similarly, functioning of the revenue department has also improved as time taken to deliver different services to people has come down drastically. Previously, 100 to 150 days were taken to resolve mutation cases, but the time period has come down to less than 21 days in 2023-24. The chief minister was informed that 3.7 lakh land pattas were disbursed within a week. Besides, time taken to issue different certificates including caste certificate has also come down. The CMO informed that basing on feedback from the people, six officers of the Odisha Administrative Service (OAS) have been given compulsory retirement and four have been dismissed. While 32 OAS and 14 Odisha Revenue Service (ORS) officers were suspended, gratuity and pension of 11 OAS officers have been stopped. The chief minister observed that there is also a need for improvement in the process adopted for promotion of employees. JSW Paints launches its innovative product that focuses on consumers' health & well-being at home

MUMBAI : JSW Paints, India's environment-friendly paints company and part of the US $13 billion JSW Group, has launched its product campaign focusing on the Halo Aquaglo range. JSW Paints Aquaglo is India's first water-based paints for wood & metal surfaces with Germ Block Zn2-ion technology. Previously, Indian consumers were using solvent-based enamels, popularly known as "Oil Paint", for painting wood & metal surfaces. These contain chemicals and solvents that have a strong odour and have a high VOC (Volatile Organic Content). As a result, these paints are not recommended for kids and people with health conditions as the solvents pollute the home with their unhealthy fumes post-application. Such paint products also take a relatively long time to dry, creating inconvenience for the family at home and can be smelly for a week or two. On the other hand, JSW Paints Aquaglo is 100% water-based, has low odour, dries quickly and is completely family-friendly. Due to its quick-drying benefit, it enables the painting to be finished in a very short time as well. It also retains its shine for a longer period. The Aquaglo campaign brings the focus back on consumers' overall health and well-being through the Bollywood star and JSW Paints brand ambassador, Alia Bhatt, as she urges consumers to #PaintKaGKBadhaao. The campaign also includes well-known artist and stand-up comedian Atul Khatri and brings to life the mass hysteria related to any new idea. Alia's reaction to the strong smell of solvent-based paint being used on her newly painted door results in a social media tsunami and a cascade of jokes & banter with everyone joining in for a laugh, misconstruing Alia's point that the oil paint on the door causes pollution, as doors cause pollution. This highlights the low level of awareness among consumers about the availability and benefits of water-based paints for wood and metal. Aquaglo is also the first paint for wood & metal in India with Germ Block, making it very safe for the family. The campaign is on air across leading TV channels across India and Disney+Hotstar streaming platform. The campaign is conceptualized by TBWA India. According to Anuradha Bose, Chief Marketing Officer of JSW Paints, "Following the successful disruption of our Any Colour One Price initiative, we are now delighted to launch our thoughtful product innovation, Aquaglo. It aims to change yet another convention in paints of using only 'oil paint' for wood & metal.

Our new campaign draws consumers' attention to the clear benefit of adopting a water-based Aquaglo range of paints for painting wooden doors, metal grills and other such surfaces in their homes. Paint Ka GK badhaao is a clear call to action to make India sit up and choose wellness and comfort." Speaking about the Aquaglo campaign's attempt to change Indian paint consumers' expectations, Govind Pandey, CEO, TBWA India said, "Paint category has been dominated by the same market leaders for decades without any real challenger. JSW Paints is the disruptor that is questioning the status quo prevailing in the industry.

Apeejay Education and AWS announce new accelerator program

Bhubaneswar : Apeejay Education, an academic institution in India established for more than 50 years, and Amazon Web Services (AWS), an Amazon.com company, today announced the launch of the National Education Policy Accelerator Program (NEPAP), an initiative to enable academic institutions in India to align with the technology requirements documented in the Government's National Education Policy 2020 (NEP 2020). This is the first program in India to support the technology transformation of education institutions as per the NEP 2020. The NEP 2020 aims to strengthen India's education sector that directly contributes to the country's growth and development, demonstrating the need to integrate technology in education to improve learning and teaching at all levels. The accelerator program will address two key tenets of the NEP 2020 – on the extensive use of technology in teaching, learning, education planning, and management; and in the creation of open, interoperable, evolvable, public digital infrastructure in the education sector to support multiple platforms and point solutions. The accelerator program will guide academic institutions on multiple aspects of the NEP 2020. It will support academic institutions by conducting digital innovation workshops to focus on identifying and prioritizing unique challenges of the academic institutions, and co-building solutions or proof-of-concepts (POCs) using technologies such as artificial intelligence (AI) and machine learning (ML). AWS will drive these workshops based on the Amazon Working

Backwards innovation methodology, which uses design thinking to identify and define a customer-focused problem or opportunity and develop prototypes. Through the accelerator program, AWS and Apeejay Education will support academic institutions with AWS credits, capacity building workshops, and access to dedicated resources, to build and implement the POCs. Apeejay Education will bring expertise on the use cases of digital solutions in the education sector, and support with testing the solutions to extend the reach to other institutions across India.

CA reports loss despite hosting T20 World Cup

New Delhi: Cricket Australia, on Thursday, reported a loss of USD 16.9 million for the financial year 2022-23 despite earning USD 42.5 million from hosting the 2022 T20 World Cup. Even as the matches set a new attendance record last year, which included 92,000 spectators for the match between India and Pakistan at the MCG, and a sold-out crowd of 53,866 for the BBL final between the Perth Scorchers and Brisbane Heat at Perth Stadium, the cricket board had expected a loss since it was a 'non-Ashes year'. The board also signed a USD 1.512 billion seven-year media rights deal with the Foxtel Group and the Seven West Media to broadcast cricket in Australia from 2024-31 and a new seven-year deal with Disney Star for the right to broadcast Australian cricket in India. Apart from having the crowds return to the stadium after the COVID-19 pandemic, BBL was once again the most-watched sports league in Australia on a per-game linear TV basis, with an average of 532,000 viewers. During this period, the Australia women's team won the 50-over World Cup as well as the Commonwealth gold medal. A five-year MoU (memorandum of understanding) was signed, which increased their share in the revenue from USD 80 million to USD 133 million. The participation for Woolworths Cricket Blast increased by 24% from 56,464 to 69,879, with more than 25,000 girls between ages 5 and 12 registered to play cricket. Overall, the participation in community cricket reached near-record pre-CoVID rates, with the numbers increasing from 598,931 to 627,693. Cricket Australia stated in a release, "The upside in the T20 World Cup performance has driven an increase in the player revenue share and a sharing of upside with the States and Territories, with funding at an all-time high level increasing by $7m to $120m." They further added, "Total expenses excluding player payments increased by 5% reflecting full delivery of programs, higher travel costs post Covid, and investments in the Big Bash League and the new grassroots cricket system."

Speaking on the development, Mike Baird, Cricket Australia chair, said, ""This has been a year of high achievement for Australian Cricket with the completion of the media rights deal, the MOU and other significant initiatives putting the game on a strong footing, while our national teams again performed brilliantly on the global stage. "Cricket has reached an important moment with the continued emergence of franchise cricket creating both significant challenges and enormous opportunities as interest in our sport grows. As a global leader, we believe CA is well placed to play a strong role in shaping the future of cricket including fulfilling our commitment to the primacy of Test cricket and maximising the benefits of our status as an Olympic sport to broaden the game's horizons." Nick Hockley, Cricket Australia CEO, added, "The completion of media rights agreements with the Foxtel Group, Seven West Media and Disney Star gives Australian Cricket unparalleled coverage and reach, whilst the negotiating of a new player MOU which caters for changing dynamics in the global game also provides confidence and certainty across Australian Cricket. "During what was our highest attended summer on record, we hosted a successful T20 World Cup and made strategic investments in the Big Bash Leagues and kids participation that will benefit the game for years to come."

Maxwell, Warner centuries flatten Netherlands

New Delhi: Australia romped home to their third successive win in the 2023 World Cup with a record-breaking 309-run win over Netherlands in Delhi on Wednesday (October 25). It was the biggest margin of victory in World Cup history. Contrasting centuries from Glenn Maxwell and David Warner along with fifties from Steve Smith and Marnus Labuschagne meant that Netherlands were set a mammoth target of 400 and to state the obvious, the chase never took off for the Dutch as they crashed to 90 all-out and to defeat by 309 runs. Much like it has been through the tournament so far, the new ball under lights was a tough task for the batters and Netherlands had no answers to Australia's pace attack or the craft of Adam Zampa. There were a few boundaries in the first few overs with Vikramjit Singh living adventurously but once the opening stand was broken, the floodgates opened for the Aussies who were relentless thereafter. Mitchell Starc, Josh Hazlewood and Pat Cummins were all too hot to handle for the Dutch batters who struggled to put bat to ball. The pacy hard length worked a treat for Australia and once Zampa came on, the end was hastened. It was a massive reality check for Netherlands who earlier had to experience a massive onslaught from Australia's batters on another fine batting surface at the Arun Jaitley Stadium. A flamboyant century from Warner and his century stand with Smith had got Australia rolling after the early dismissal of Mitchell Marsh. The duo were proactive from the get-go with Smith being the initial aggressor. Netherlands' ploy of starting with spin backfired as Warner took the attack to Aryan Dutt early on and that set the tone for Australia's innings. A soft dismissal ended Smith's stay but Labuschagne and Warner motored along merrily as Australia eyed a massive score. Netherlands, though, fought back admirably for a while to trigger a mini-collapse and at 290/6, the Dutch would have had hopes of curbing the final assault. And then, Maxwell happened.

Making 'good decisions' driving South Africa's charge, feels Duminy

New Delhi:JP Duminy has been shot in this movie before. He was part of South Africa's men's World Cup squad in 2011, 2015 and 2019. All of those campaigns ended unhappily. Now he's the batting coach of a side who have won four of their five games in the 2023 edition of the tournament. What has changed? "We've made some really good decisions," Duminy said at the Wankhede on Tuesday after South Africa had thrashed Bangladesh by 149 runs. "We've probably been guilty in the past of making decisions, when we've been under pressure, that have not matched what is in front of us." Duminy has a tendency to sound more like a corporate chief executive than a coach. So, could he give an example of what he meant? "If the pitch is turning we're speaking largely around our options to score square [of the pitch]. If it's not turning it presents opportunities for straighter bat shots with the willingness to go over the top. "Conditions dictate but there are times when situations will make us gravitate towards certain options. Ultimately, if we're communicating out there and encouraging each other to take the positive option, we're making good decisions." Did that make this campaign feel different from 2011, when South Africa lost by 49 runs chasing just 222 to beat New Zealand in their quarterfinal in Dhaka? Or 2015, when they were undermined by reckless board interference in selection on the eve of their semifinal against the Kiwis in Auckland, where they lost by four wickets off the penultimate ball? Or 2019 in England, where they had their eye taken off the ball by the breaking news of AB de Villiers' ham-handed offer to come out of retirement and lost five of their eight completed games to crash out in the first round? Much would need to unfold in this tournament before a rigorous comparison could be made, but Duminy said contrasts with what had gone before were becoming apparent: "When I played we tried to push ourselves to take on [the bowling] in the last 15 overs. But we have to recognise moments in the game when we could gain momentum - how do we put the foot down? That's where we've gained confidence. "Having experienced it myself and understanding the anxiety and the nervous energy players experience, it's about letting them know that's part of the journey. It's not about suppressing it. It's about embracing it and creating good behaviours. "We know we're going to be tested in different scenarios, and I believe we have the confidence and the momentum to make better choices." The buck stops with Duminy for a batting lineup who registered three of the top five totals in the first half of the World Cup, and who made six of the 19 centuries. But they did that by taking guard first. The only time they fielded first, against the Netherlands in Dharamsala last Tuesday, they fell victim to a sensational upset by being dismissed for 207 in search of 246.

Duminy said that should not be taken as evidence that South Africa were effective only when they batted first: "We know people are going to ask questions about batting second, but I'm a strong believer that we're ready for that whenever the time comes." South Africa's key batter is Quinton de Kock, who has scored three centuries in five innings and was the tournament's leading runmaker up to Tuesday's match. De Kock doesn't give much away in press conferences and famously is happier holding a fishing rod than a bat. How did Duminy ensure De Kock was primed to deliver?
