

President of India Graces 55th foundation day celebrations of the ICSI

NewDelhi,(KCN):The President of India, Smt Droupadi Murmu graced the 55th foundation day celebrations of the Institute of Company Secretaries of India (ICSI) in New Delhi today (October 4, 2023). Speaking on the occasion, the President said that Company Secretaries should remember that their loyalty is not only to perform the legal work as an officer or professional of a company, but their duty is also towards every citizen of the country who has been left behind in the developmental journey. She emphasised that the role of the corporate world in managing resources should be that of trusteeship. She said that the spirit of service should be their basic mantra. She urged them to move forward on the path of good corporate governance while remembering Gandhiji's Talisman "Remember the face of the poorest and most helpless man". She said that their goal should be "prosperity with human dignity". The President said that three sins out of seven sins mentioned by

Gandhiji are - wealth without work; knowledge without character; and commerce without ethics. She stated that the lessons related to these three sins should always be guiding lights for the Company Secretaries. She said that "Ethics in Business" is more important than "Business Ethics". She stated that as a vigilant watchdog of corporate governance, Company Secretaries have to take care that the legal provisions meant to increase ease of doing business are not misused. The President said that today, India is scaling new heights. Be it economic or social development, we are moving towards becoming a leading nation. In such scenario, it becomes more important that our professionals are not only qualified and competent, but also courageous and creative. She stated that the future of India's corporate governance depends on willpower and actions of Company Secretaries. They can make India a role model of 'Good Corporate Governance' as well as of 'Good Governance'. The President said that the work of ICSI is not only to create such professionals in the country who are capable, competent and proficient in corporate functioning and laws, but also to create such boardrooms, society and culture where good governance, integrity and discipline are not just words or buzzwords. These should be the universal truth of every aspect of life, and should also be the yardstick for measuring any decision. The President said that change is the law of nature. If we are not comfortable with change, or if we do not change our attitudes, methods and way of working with the times, our aspiration for good governance would not be fulfilled. Be it new technological inventions like AI, or changes in the regulatory environment, with all these changes we would have to change. She was happy to note that ICSI have not only updated their syllabus as per the need but have also encouraged research.

The maze

(Shibangi Dhara), Bandana Sahoo

Wrapped in storm
With a dark eye
Who is he?
His eyes are bright
He is looking at me
With a bit of a scowl
I am enjoying it
With great love.

Ohh !! Her sweet words
Hurting me
With great love
I applied ointment on my heart
With great love
Desires are awakening hope.

Look how deep his color is,
Slowly climbing up
This is talking the heart
Towards itself
That illusive animal of his heart
Is very clever.

My steps are moving slowly
All my dreams have started entering the maze,
Go out go out
I have started thinking
Now I am looking for ways
I can't control my legs Started slipping by fear.

A life beyond eyes

Dwit David Philip

A life beyond eyes,
Seeing that, one does shys,
The first time when one realises, one repents and cries,
Same with me, when I felt those musics.

From these, may I flee, Wastages of time, till I couldn't see, what's the use of an eye,
All wealths, times, energies and beauties, though chime,
Real tests of life, when one joins being lonely.

This world is not mine,
Mine is made for beyond this eye,
One see, there "I",
From those makes one blind, welcomes me,

Responsibilities can be carried on,
Life till end, may go on,
Nothing stops, if one is determined to be the winner,
Jesus and many, chose to be that owner.

What it is?
Perfect bliss,
Within the sea or at mountain peak or in the skies,
Only being alone, one feels those musics.

The Implication of Kartik Month: A Quest for Spirituality worship the Tulsi plant. It's a cultural heritage of our Hindu cult that we have been continuing for ages. Even there is a tradition in Odisha where an earthen pot with Diya is lit with a complete whole inside. Every with the dawn of wisdom. Hence people pray for the purification of their souls by meditating or fasting. Even some people eat once a day. Most people opt for vegan food instead of meat intake to maintain a balanced lifestyle. Hence this month is the worshipers this month. The entire month goes on with the holy chants of divine lords. The devotees adore Lord Shiva, Kartikeya, and Goddess Laxmi. Most believers pray near the plant of Tulsi and offer holy water to the Sun in the early morning. The glorious month of observing Dhanteras. The last five days are traditionally known as Vishnu Panchak. Devotees rigorously fast these five days beginning from the Ekadasi day to Purnima(full moon). Again the full moon day is abundantly celebrated by the worshippers with a Kartik month or Kartik Maas is believed to be the first month of Chaturamas. This year, it will be started on the 29th of October. It's considered to be the most sacred and religious month of the year. According to the Hindu Calendar, this month is the eighth month of the year.

Kartik Maas is believed to be the holy month in which the devotees pray to Lord Vishnu or Damodar for the well-being of their families. By leaving all non religious activities even the immoral persons of the society try to indulge in spiritual awakening. The last five days of this month are even considered as most pious there is a saying that even a non-vegan bird starts to fast with a religious fervor. That's why it's called 'Panchuka'. People decorate their houses with pristine reflections of Diya and also they evening the worshipers light the pot and hang that at a high place with the use of a pulley. There is no science behind every traditional belief of our country. Lightening the earthen lamps and candles to justify the presence of virtue over vice. It intensifies the mystic aura everywhere. Light means consciousness and darkness means ignorance. So in the month of Kartik, we celebrate the festival of Diwali. This month has so many relevance in our lives like enlightening the unconscious soul for reviving the dead ideas with the spirit of liberation. By discarding Earthly pleasure we embrace penance. People get up extremely early in Brahma Murtha and initiate their offerings to lords and particularly they visit the temple of Radha and Krishna. Reciting and listening to the tales of Kartik maas (Katha) accomplish their days. They also take a holy dip in sacred rivers to eliminate their filthy thoughts and lusty attitudes toward worldly commodities. Reading Bhagavad Geeta and the Holy Scriptures can cleanse the body and mind of Kartik commences with the advent of Sharad Purnima with the glory of the full moon. The worshippers devour the entire month by worshipping Goddess Radhika and Lord Krishna. Amavasya is followed after completing fifteen days of this holy month. Deepavali is celebrated, as the festival of sparkling lights to commemorate the arrival of Lord Ram from Lanka. This festival also marks the triumph of virtue over vice. In this festival, people welcome Ma Laxmi with wealth in abundance by unique culture (particularly in Odisha). They flow small paper boats or boats made from banana stems in the sacred rivers to get rid of the sins and to obtain the fruit of the spiritual gains they procure from the chastity of the entire month. So with the offerings of flowers and incense sticks, devotees take a dip in the sacred rivers to get salvation. With a variety of pious relevance, the month of Kartik sanctifies the vices of the worshippers by reawakening their inner consciousness with spiritual awareness.

I love you

RK Biswal

I love your lips when they're wet with wine
And red with a wild desire;
I love your eyes when the love light lies Lit with a passionate fire.
I love your arms when the warm white flesh Touches mine in a fond embrace;
I love your hair when the strands enmesh
Your kisses against my face.
Not for me the cold, calm kiss
Of a virgin's bloodless love;
Not for me the saint's white bliss,
Nor the heart of a spotless dove.
But give me the love that so freely gives
And laughs at the whole world's blame,
With your body so young and warm in my arms,
It sets my poor heart aflame.

So kiss me sweet with your warm wet mouth,
Still fragrant with ruby wine,
And say with a fervour born of the South
That your body and soul are mine.
Clasp me close in your warm young arms,
While the pale stars shine above,
And we'll live our whole young lives away
In the joys of a living love.

Bithoor, Uttar Pradesh

A small town on the banks of River Ganga, near Kanpur, Uttar Pradesh, Bithoor is a place of great religious and historical importance. The town has been mentioned in ancient Hindu manuscripts. According to legends, Bithoor became the residence of Lord Brahma after Lord Vishnu recreated the universe. Bithoor got its name after a series of changes. Utpalaranya forest is believed to be the site of Brahma's Ashwamedha Yajna (A nail of one of the horses used in the Yajna is believed to have been preserved at the site and stands as a testament to the ancient legend). The temple (one of the few shrines devoted to Lord Brahma in India) also has a Shivaling named Brahmeshwar Mahadeva that is believed to have been established by Brahma. After completion of the yajna, the same forest was given the name of Brahmavart Ghat (the seat of Brahma), which the locals later started calling Bithoor. The first humans, Manu and Shatarupa are also believed to have been created in the Brahmavart Ghat. Later, Bithoor flourished under the reign of emperor Uttanpad. His son Prince Dhruva (who grew up to be a saint) was a great devotee of Lord Brahma. It is said that Dhruva meditated on one foot to appease Lord Brahma. Delighted with his dedication and devotion, Lord Brahma appeared before him and granted him the boon of immortality and Dhruva became a shining star in the galaxy. The star Dhruva Taara is named after him. Moreover, Dhruva Teela (Dhruva's Hill) still stands in Bithoor as an evidence to the penance performed by Dhruva.

Bithoor is considered to be a prominent religious place because of its association with the ancient text, Ramayana. The town houses the Valmiki Ashram. It is believed that sage Valmiki composed the Ramayana in this ashram. Goddess Sita took refuge in Valmiki Ashram during her exile and gave birth to Luv and Kush. A place inside the Valmiki Ashram is known as Luv-Kush Janmsthal. It is said that Luv-Kush received their education from Valmiki at this spot. The ashram also consists of Sita Rasoi, which is believed to be Goddess Sita's kitchen during her exile. Another site, Sita Patal Pravesha, is the site where she decided to unite with mother Earth.

Allu Arjun To Make Hollywood Debut Soon? Actor Says 'It's Time To Think Global'

Star Allu Arjun has plans for Hollywood, as the popularity of 'RRR' has propelled Indian cinema worldwide. The actor said that this phenomenon has opened the doors for Indian cinema to go international. Speaking to Variety about his Hollywood plans, Allu Arjun said: "It has opened the doors and the minds of people that there is something beyond our regular traditional markets that we need to go explore and our reach as much as possible."

As part of this expansion, the actor said that he already has plans to sign up with a Hollywood agent: "It's time for all Indian actors to think globally, because India is going to be a global superpower. All businesses in India will flourish and so will the Indian film industry." "I feel in less than 10 years from now, Indian cinema will be viewed all over the world, like how Korean dramas have been watched all over the world, with a very high probability for India to be in the same spot in the coming decade. It's really a golden era for entertainment industry in India." Talking about his win at the National Indian Film Awards and becoming the first actor to do so, Allu Arjun told Variety: "Getting the national award is the highest official respect you can get. What we realised was that in 69 years of Telugu cinema, while other technicians and directors have won, no actor had won best actor at the National Awards." "So that was a pathbreaking achievement and became the pride of the Telugu people. I was glad that I could contribute to it in a small way." He attributed the success of 'Pushpa' to its rootedness and rustic nature. "It's the common man factor, it's the character's attitude that really connected across all languages," Arjun said. "We wanted a very authentic, rustic, rooted storytelling." "I think that authenticity and honesty paid off, we were not trying to be somebody else, we were trying to be who we are and still trying to appeal to everybody else. It's like how they say, going local is going global." "Pushpa 2: The Rule" is due for release sometime in 2024. Allu Arjun has described the film as being "even more of an adrenaline rush."

Centenary Wishes for a Legend

Always preferred the life of a scholar gypsy, I began writing in 1973 in Odia handwritten magazines, but my first publication in print was in Meenabazar page of Prajatantra on 11 September 1975. Now, Prajatantra has completed 100 years of its publication. Happy Centenary Wishes to Prajatantra and its Editor Bhartruhari Mahtab. This Odia newspaper was founded by Dr. Harekrushna Mahtab. Started as a weekly from Cuttack on this day, 3 Oct. 1923 it was shut down in 1930 as a protest against British oppression. It was revived one and a half decades later as a daily on 8 August 1947. Mahatabji was also Governor of the the Bombay state consisting of Maharashtra and Gujarat that time. My first poem in Jhankar, the legendary literary magazine brought out from this newspaper group, was published in 1980. In 1960s and 70s, Prajatantra was one of the major newspapers of the country and the Bishuba Milan organised by it was the first Lit Fest of India when I grew as a poet. My early writings, both poems and stories, were published in Meenabazar and Prajatantra Sahitya Bibhaag. Jhankar was the most prominent literary journal those days and I was published in Jhankar in 1980. My tributes to Utkal Keshari Dr Harekrushna Mahatab who established this newspaper and a great literary tradition. Twice Chief Minister of the state and a cabinet minister in the first Indian Cabinet led by Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru, the scholar PM, he was a Rajyogi in the true sense. I have Golden Memories of Bishuba Milan for years. I got several invitations for the Bishuba Milan, 2023 on 14 April, but I have no other way than to regret with thanks as the Foundation Day of our matriculation batch will be on that auspicious day. Sampad babu invited me to become Chief Guest in the Bishuba Milan at Kakatpur on 14 April. I had to regret as our Matriculation Classmates are meeting that day at Puri. This sent me to the land of golden memories. We used to celebrate Bishuba Sankranti in a big way. Odisha has a lot of festivals and Bishuba or Pana Sankranti is a major one. Later, when I became active in literature, I started going to Bishuba Milana at Prajatantra, Cuttack. The other few people attending from Puri included Prof Rajkishore Ray, Kumar Mohanty, Harihar Mishra, Phani Mohanty, Debaddutta Samantsinhara, Chittaranjan Mishra. Later, Kamalakanta Lenka joined at SCS College, Puri. He used to attend Prajatantra Bishuba Milan regularly. Being inspired by Prajatantra Bishuba Milana, Chitta Ranjan Mishra, Bijoy Patanayak and Umakanta Mohanty with their other friends started a Bishuba Milana at Puri. We, the then young authors used to attend it. The idea of forming Sanibar Sahitya Sandhya came there in 1977. We started doing our own Bishuba Kabita Asara subsequently and it continued for years. Now it is stopped. It seems, nobody has time now in that organisation for literature. A few years back I met Bhartruhari Mahtab at Bhubaneswar Airport. My friend Manas Ranjan Samal was with me. He was to catch a flight to Kolkata and we to Delhi. We had almost an hour time and so, we talked of many things including Prajatantra Bishuba Milana. Bhartruhari Babu insisted that I should come that year to Bishuba Milana and chair the Poetry session. It was the month of January 2009 if I correctly recollect. More than two months passed since then. General Election was announced. Bhartruhari Babu was busy. One day in the first week of April 2009, Saroj Ranjan Mohanty called me.... 'Manas, have you received our letter?' 'No Sarojbhai', I replied. 'Is it for Bishuba Milana?' I questioned. 'Yes, we wrote for your consent. Now our invitation card is to be printed...' He replied. 'Why you need my consent, it was already discussed with Bhartruhari Babu', I said. Then I asked him for the detailed programme as planned by them and understood that they have invited me as a speaker with Dr Bhagaban Jaisingh and somebody else to Chair the poetry session. I was happy that I will share dais with Bhagaban Jaisingh who was teacher of my friends at Ravenshaw College, but was hurt that Bhartruhari Babu did not keep his words. I was in a dilemma if to go or not. But, Prajatantra's letter did not come in time and I could not go due to this communication gap. I have not attended Bishuba Milana anywhere since then. I am retired now with no post retirement posting. Nobody salutes a setting sun! When Sampad Babu called me to invite to the Bishuba Milana at Kakatpur on 14th April, I fondly recollected how a boy of 15-16 used to travel by Puri Cuttack Shuttle without ticket, stayed in the house of Surendranath Nayak, the then Secretary of South Eastern Railway Mens Congress (His wife Pramila Nayak was a writer for children and got the first award for children's literature from Odisha Sahitya Akademi), and to travel by City Bus from Badambadi to Chandnichowk to go to Bishuba Milana at Bihari Bagh Suraj Talkies way back in 1975. A city bus ticket was 10 paise those days. Gone are the days.... Everything is lost in transit. This is a digital world where we post everything through WhatsApp and respond in waves of time...

Prof. MANAS RANJAN MAHAPATRA

Letter To Editor

Dear Editor

Zoological gardens around the globe are doing absolutely excellent job in highlighting and publicizing importance of global biodiversity conservation through an extraordinary effort in disseminating environmental education and awareness and other beneficial environmental activities to the public at large. Hats off to them specially in the context of noticeable negligence of governmental policies and strategies with respect to conservation of global biodiversity for promoting infrastructural development, economic growth and prosperity without doing proper environmental impact assessment. Some of the most important aspects of modern biodiversity conservation are : 1. Biodiversity importance & need for comprehensive conservation strategy 2. Captive breeding & reintroduction of endangered animal species back to the nature: Success and failures 3. Wildlife trade and trafficking and role of modern zoos towards wildlife conservation and education/awareness 4. Reporting of nature based stories for newspapers/magazines; and how to make it attractive and educational for the readers 5. An overall idea of global wildlife conservation initiative and the importance forest conservation. It is therefore important for us to understand that that zoological gardens around the world have shifted from their principal role of displaying of animals or specific fauna towards holistic conservation efforts. Zoos now play an important and integral role in captive breeding of several endangered and critically endangered species of wildlife and their successful reintroduction to the wild habitats. Zoos also provide veterinary care for sick animals or wildlife that need medical interventions. It is simply not a centre of recreation for the public anymore; but, a wildlife refuge, rehabilitation, education and awareness centre rather.

Role of Panchayats in Dispute Resolution

Pradeep Kumar Panda

Democratization of justice system should start from the grassroots level through transforming and sensitizing existing dispute settlement mechanisms to assuring human rights and constitutional values and linking them with the formal justice system. This will interface well with the process of democratic decentralization that is presently going on in the country through the Panchayati Raj Institutions (PRIs) as dispensation of justice is critical to any poverty reduction agenda and economic growth. A functioning justice system is not only a mark of development but also a factor of development. Thus, access to justice is not only central to the realization of constitutionally guaranteed rights, but also to broader goals of development and poverty reduction and urgently needs acceptance as a development indicator. The age-old institutions of local self governance have found new vigor with the introduction of the 73rd Constitutional Amendment Act (CAA). Strengthening of panchayats and empowering people at the grassroots to resolve their minor disputes amicably would solve many of the problems that are faced by conventional justice dispensation system. Indeed, this would also provide a solution to the problems of accessibility of the courts, for those living in remote regions too. Self governance envisaged by the constitution must include judicial powers too and that is the rationale for 'Nyaya Panchayats' which implies judicial decentralization at the people's level. Andhra Pradesh, Maharashtra, Karnataka, Kerala and West Bengal have not made any statutory provisions for establishment of Nyaya Panchayats in their State Panchayati Raj Acts. But where laws are enacted, as in Bihar, Gujarat, Haryana, Himachal Pradesh, Manipur, Mizoram, Punjab, Uttar Pradesh, Rajasthan, Sikkim, Madhya Pradesh and Odisha, they are, in most part, non functional. The present scenario seems to be that neither judicial functions are properly enforced nor have Nyaya Panchayats established themselves as effective instruments for settlements of disputes. It is interesting to note that Kerala has not included any judicial provision in the Kerala Panchayat Raj Act, 1994. However, there are cases of 'Neeti Melas' (legal aid camps conducted by the Panchayats) and have resolved local issues. Similarly, states like Maharashtra have also implemented such legal aid camps to provide grievance redressal for the disputes at the panchayat level. Some panchayats have also taken up measures to attain the level of 'litigation free' panchayats. Generally, it is observed that in a few states where Nyaya Panchayats have been performing, their potential has not been fully exploited. There has also been no uniformity among the states on its functions. Most of the Nyaya Panchayats were formed through a system of nomination or a combination of election with nomination. The nomination system by District Magistrate, who would act on the recommendation of lower functionaries, may lead to influential persons being nominated to serve on Nyaya Panchayats, thus impinging upon the neutrality required for such institutions. The working of Nyaya Panchayats may also be affected due to the members being subjected to influences and pressures. The Gram Nyayalayas Act, 2008 has been enacted by the Govt. of India, to provide for the establishment of the Gram Nyayalayas at the grassroots level for the purpose of providing access to justice to the citizens at their door steps (Govt. of India, 2008). Presently, only a few states have Gram Nyayalayas, which have almost a formal character, which makes them complicated. They also tend to be more expensive for the litigants and thus not people-centric. Hence, they have restricted access to justice as compared to the Nyaya Panchayats. The Gram Nyayalayas with a Nyayadhipati and lawyers representing the parties are still not at the reaching level of the common man. National Advisory Council (NAC) advised the Govt. of India to introduce legislation on Nyaya Panchayats. On June 25, 2006 a committee was constituted under the chairmanship of Upendra Dahi, and a draft bill was prepared. The bill proposed to Nyaya Panchayats at the panchayat level to resolve disputes before they reach the formal justice system. However, the bill could not be taken to its logical end due to various reservations expressed by the Ministry of Law and Justice, Ministry of Finance and State Governments. At present, there are more than 2.5 lakhs Panchayati Raj Institutions in India. If Nyaya Panchayats are instituted at the level of each Gram Panchayat it can bring justice at the doorstep. Down the course of history even the existing Nyaya Panchayats have sparingly provided access to justice through a process of participatory mode. As the subject of Nyaya Panchayats, raises a number of pertinent questions which are to be tackled through discussions for a wider acceptability, a study on the institutionalization of Nyaya Panchayats gains importance. Some states such as Karnataka, Madhya Pradesh and Maharashtra have adopted pilot projects in some districts with a view to adjudicating cases in the rural sector speedily. Under the Karnataka model, which came into effect in April, 1993, special judicial magistrates adjudicated rural cases at the spot of the dispute. In Jammu and Kashmir Adalat offices are attached with the panchayat and panchayat organizes conciliatory meetings. In Bihar, there is separate institution namely "gram kacheri". Thus the States are addressing the issue through different adhoc mechanisms. They would dispose of a large number of cases and thus relieve the burden of regular courts. They would succeed in getting a large number of cases compromised through peaceful conciliation. The villagers in general would be satisfied with the administration of justice by a Village/ Panchayat court. Appeals and revisions from these decisions would be small in number. There would be speedy and cheap disposal of cases. The litigants and witnesses who are mostly agriculturists can conveniently attend the courts and thus there would be no interference with agricultural activities in the village. The Panchayat could bring justice nearer to the villager without involving the expenditure which would otherwise have to be incurred in establishing regular court. Local courts, acquainted with the customs of the neighborhood and nuances of the local idiom, are better able to understand issues at the local level. An institution nearer to the people holds out greater opportunities for settlement and as decision taken by it does not leave behind that trail of bitterness which generally follows in the litigation in ordinary courts. There are better chances of conciliatory method of approach in Nyaya Panchayats. People in a village are so closely known to each other that the parties to a dispute would not be able to conceal or produce false evidence easily and those who tell lies before the Nyaya Panchayat face the risk of being looked down upon. Since ages in India, panchayats have been arbitrating on property disputes, torts and even criminal offences like murder and rape since time immemorial. Panchayat (literally five wise men) is a representative body of the members of a particular caste or village (usually headed by the elder most people or the most respected and experienced elder). There is very much requirement of the institution of Nyaya

Panchayats with intent to providing justice to the common man in a cost effective manner, impartial decision, maintaining social harmony, reducing the burden of courts, with the legal provision of Panchayati Raj Act, settling disputes through conciliation. Need of the hour is to study the various facets of the three types of justice delivery presently prevailing in states namely Panchayat with Judicial Powers (Himachal Pradesh), Separate Courts functioning with the Panchayat (Bihar), Panchayats without judicial powers as per acts (Kerala and Karnataka). There is requirement to study judicial provisions in the act, territorial jurisdictions, legal jurisdictions, bench for hearing, appeal, role of police, execution, records, and documents, time taken for adjudication, conciliation, role of community, and problem faced by Panchayats. Linkage with formal system of dispute resolution in PESA act will strengthen the system for justice in Panchayats. This will lead to creation of litigation free panchayats in India which will be best tribute to soul of Mahatma Gandhi.

Utility complex at GMU to be unveiled this month

SAMBALPUR (KCN): The proposed utility complex on the premises of Gangadhar Meher University which was proposed to provide recreational facilities and essential services to the students of the varsity under one roof is likely to be inaugurated this month. Deputy registrar Uma Charan Pati said, "The work of the utility complex is in the final stages now. The building is likely to be handed over to us by mid-October. We are now planning to inaugurate the complex by the end of

The matter will be raised in the Syndicate meeting and a decision will be taken after consulting with the members, he added. The utility complex built at a cost of Rs 4.35 crore, has been developed over an area of 594.750 square metres on the premises of the varsity. The Odisha State Police Housing and Welfare Corporation (OPHCWC) is executing the work on the complex. The construction of the three-storey building was started in August 2021, after the demolition of an old building on the same land which was functioning as the office of the regional director (RD), Higher Education, adjacent to the varsity auditorium. The complex will house facilities like a bank, an ATM, a post office, a gym, a food court for the students, and essential stores including stationery and general items shop for the students. The ground floor of the building will be a dedicated parking area. A student leader, Chuman Pradhan said, "Though several infrastructures have been developed in the varsity in last few years, GMU still lacks some of the basic student-centric amenities like a canteen and an ATM. We hope that the varsity authorities act swiftly to implement the facilities as per the proposal." We hope the construction quality of the building is up to the mark unlike the varsity auditorium, which has been inaugurated but still unusable, Pradhan added.

Virat Kohli to rejoin the team soon; will fly to Chennai with teammates

New Delhi: Virat Kohli will soon rejoin the Indian team, currently based in Thiruvananthapuram. He will be flying from Mumbai later in the night and will then travel to Chennai with the entire contingent on Wednesday. According to sources within the Board of Control for Cricket in India (BCCI), Kohli sought permission from the board and team management to attend to a personal matter in Mumbai. A spokesman for the Indian team stated on Tuesday evening, "He will be joining us later in the evening and will be traveling with the team to Chennai tomorrow."

Kohli would have missed the second warm-up fixture against Netherlands at Greenfield International Stadium in Thiruvananthapuram had it taken place. However, the match had to be abandoned due to inclement weather. As reported by Cricbuzz over the past few days, Kohli left the team and flew to Mumbai from Guwahati, where India had been scheduled to play their first practice game against England. Unfortunately, that game was also cancelled due to rain. It is learned that Kohli has an important engagement with the International Cricket Council (ICC), the organizers of the World Cup. He will attend this engagement before flying to Chennai, where India will play their opening fixture against Australia on October 8. The customary photo-up of the captains before the World Cup will take place in Ahmedabad on Wednesday and all the captains are expected to reach the city by tonight. The World Cup kicks off in Ahmedabad on Thursday, October 5.

Sachin Tendulkar Named ICC Global Ambassador For Cricket World Cup 2023

New Delhi: Legendary Indian cricketer Sachin Tendulkar has been bestowed with the prestigious title of Global Ambassador for the ICC Men's Cricket World Cup 2023. With just days to go until the tournament kicks off, cricket fans around the world are buzzing with excitement. Tendulkar, fondly known as the Master Blaster, will have the honour of walking out with the coveted Men's Cricket World Cup Trophy, symbolically marking the commencement of the event. Let's delve into the details of this momentous announcement. Sachin Tendulkar's connection with cricket runs deep. From his humble beginnings as a ball boy in 1987 to becoming one of the game's all-time greats, World Cups have always held a special place in his heart. His crowning achievement was winning the ICC Cricket World Cup in 2011, a moment he describes as the proudest in his cricketing journey. Speaking about the upcoming tournament, Tendulkar expressed his excitement and stated, "Marquee events like the World Cup seed dreams in young minds, I hope this edition too inspires young girls and boys to pick up sports and represent their countries at the highest level."

Apart from Tendulkar, the ICC has assembled an impressive lineup of cricketing legends to enhance the spectator experience and engage fans like never before. West Indies legend Vivian Richards, South Africa's AB de Villiers, England World Cup-winning skipper Eoin

Morgan, Australia's Aaron Finch, Sri Lanka spin great Muttiah Muralitharan, New Zealand's Ross Taylor, India's Suresh Raina, former captain Mithali Raj, and Pakistan all-rounder Mohammad Hafeez will join forces to bring fans closer to the action. These cricket icons will participate in meet-and-greet sessions, share expert analyses in the ICC Online Media Zone, and attend select matches, further intensifying the excitement surrounding the World Cup. Claire Furlong, ICC General Manager of Marketing & Communications, expressed her delight at having Sachin Tendulkar as the Global Ambassador and the stellar cast of legends contributing to the event's success. She emphasized that this World Cup is set to be the biggest ever, promising cricket fans a memorable experience.

Shikhar Dhawan's Reaction To Pakistan's Cricket Team's Bizarre Fielding Effort Goes Viral

New Delhi: In the world of cricket, moments of comic relief often arise on the field, and during the 2023 World Cup warm-up clash between Pakistan and Australia, another such incident unfolded. Shikhar Dhawan, the veteran Indian cricketer known for his humour and wit, couldn't resist sharing this comical mix-up between two Pakistan fielders with the world. In this article, we delve into the incident that had cricket fans laughing, Dhawan's witty response, and the ongoing saga of Pakistan's fielding challenges. During the 23rd over of the Australia innings, Haris Rauf bowled a short delivery to Marnus Labuschagne. The batter gently played the ball towards deep backward square leg. What should have been a routine fielding effort turned into a moment of miscommunication that left everyone amused. Mohammad Wasim and Mohammad Nawaz, the two fielders tasked with stopping the ball, ended up in a hilarious mix-up. They narrowly avoided a collision but, in the process, the ball slipped between them and rolled to the boundary for an easy four runs for Australia. Shikhar Dhawan, who was not selected for India's World Cup squad, took to social media to share this comic fielding mishap. On his X (formerly Twitter) account, Dhawan posted a video of the incident, accompanied by a caption that read, "Pakistan & fielding never-ending love story." His post instantly gained traction, as cricket fans from around the world joined in on the laughter. This incident is not an isolated one for Pakistan. Over the years, the Pakistani cricket team has been a recurring character in the cricketing world's comedy sketches due to their fielding lapses. While their prowess in other aspects of the game is commendable, their fielding has often left much to be desired. These comical misfields have provided ample material for opposition fans to jest at Pakistan's expense. As the Cricket World Cup 2023 approaches, Pakistan's fielding and overall performance are under scrutiny. Spin bowling all-rounder Shadab Khan has emphasized the importance of a strong bowling unit, especially on batting-friendly pitches like those expected in India. Pakistan's bowling, including Shadab himself, has been criticized for not taking wickets in the middle overs. With the tournament just around the corner, Pakistan will need to address these concerns to compete at the highest level.

Ecstasy, agony and all that, with Ian Smith

New Delhi: "This is the moment. It is (Jofra Archer to (Martin) Guptill. Two to win! Guptill is going to push for two. They have got to go. The throw's got to go to the keeper's end! He's got it; England have won the World Cup by the barest of margins; by the barest of all margins. Absolute ecstasy for England, agony for New Zealand..." If it was difficult to forget that Lord's final, equally memorable are those words from Ian Smith. Was it a soliloquy? Monologue? Whatever, the words flowed in an unrestrained torrent as he stood, reminiscent of a tragic hero, in that dramatic setting. One could easily draw parallels to Shakespearean dramas, often punctuated by extensive soliloquies, or Christopher Marlowe's plays that conclude with lengthy monologues. The Lord's setting only heightened the dramatic ambience. Untypically it wasn't an English tragedy; it was a Kiwi catastrophe. If Kane Williamson & Co were the faces of the London heartbreak, Smith (66, then 62) was the voice of it. With his sense of oratorical perfection and vivid description of the action, his narration set a new benchmark for the experts. He went stretching his vocal cords, and the effect was nerve-jangling. His words carried a high-octane impact, perfectly complementing the theatrical denouncement on the field. As they say about poetry, Smith recollected those spontaneous overflow of emotions and actions in tranquillity. "(It was) a beautiful afternoon that turned into a beautiful evening," he recalled for Cricbuzz. "It was everything that, I suppose, everyone wanted. The majority, of course, were English fans. And in the end, they got exactly what they wanted. "It happened at the home of cricket, Lord's, of course; the two sides had never won the World Cup before, so there was always going to be a new winner. The drama unfolded throughout the course of the match, particularly in the latter part of the afternoon, when it ebbed and flowed. England seemed poised to win, then New Zealand fought back, and New Zealand could have possibly won, but then Stokes took over. There were so many things to sum up in the last 40 or 50 minutes." Smith, who will be seen and heard in this World Cup too, felt that from a New Zealand's point of view, it was soul-destroying. "We'd been there in 2015 in Melbourne, and we were completely outplayed by Australia, but this time we weren't outplayed; we were in it for the fight. And because of the weird rules of the time, we came second," he said, referring to the 'most boundaries of the day' rule that handed the World Cup to England. "Thank goodness that rule has been thrown out. It's hard to imagine a captain standing up in front of his team at the start of the day and saying, 'Look, make sure we hit lots of boundaries today because if it comes to a tie at the end of the Super Over, the team with the most boundaries will win,'" he exclaimed. "I mean, you don't factor that in. I think everyone would have agreed that it was a beautiful evening, and they could have kept going, had another Super Over. I hope that kind of thing doesn't happen again." But it was one hell of a match, wasn't it? "Well, they say so," he thought aloud. "A lot of people are saying it. I've seen documentaries saying it's the greatest game of cricket ever. Certainly, it'll always go down in history as one of the most remarkable for all the things that happen on just one day of cricket." Smith recently met some members of the current New Zealand team and realised that they have moved on from that heartbreak. "I spoke to a couple of players last week who said it really hasn't come up in conversation because there are several different players now. But those who remain from 2019, simply will never forget that in your cricketing life." You'll always come back to that. People will always remind you of it. So I think for the most experienced ones, the (Kane) Williamsons, the (Trent) Boult, the (James) Neeshams, the (Mitchell) Santner) Santas... I think they'll never forget 2019. And I'm not going to say that there would be motivation for them trying to do better this time around. And you don't forget a World Cup final like that." The same teams are now set to lift the curtain of a new World Cup. Are they equally matched? "Well, I've just been watching New Zealand play England in England, and New Zealand lost the one-day series there. On paper, I think England are as strong, maybe even stronger than they were in 2019. And I say that because they've had another four years together as a unit under their belt. "And getting Stokes back at a time when he thought he perhaps wouldn't be playing and we've already seen what impact he can have. I just think England now are playing white ball cricket with a real confidence, no fear type approach, and that makes them exceedingly dangerous. So I think New Zealand will go into that first game on Thursday as underdogs. "But we don't mind that. I kind of sense we've got a pretty well balanced side, actually. And we know we can beat England. We've done it just recently and convincingly, too. But we also know that they can beat us. I would say we're the underdogs, but not overwhelming underdogs. I think we've got a real chance at it there." So, are England the team to beat in India? Are they the favourites? "I don't think," he shot back. "We saw how good they were in the T20 competition in Australia. That wasn't that long ago. But I think India are the outright favourites. I just believe that they've got enough quality, enough class. They've got a magnificent all round side." I think the crowd will add a heck of a dimension. Often that brings extra pressure but if you're going well that is a huge wave to ride on when you've got a crowd of the passion of Indian fans. So I always think that when you go to India you're beating more than just eleven cricketers; you're beating the passion that exists there."
